

John T. Flynn Says:

Holds WPA Course Depends Entirely on President.

By JOHN T. FLYNN
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

One Strong Fleet, Two Canals, Best National Defense

Major Eliot Opposes Popular Idea of Having
Two Fleets

DIVISION IS PERIL

Keep Navy Together, and Build Second Canal
at Nicaragua

When "Uncle Sam Chooses His Weapons"—for self-defense in an increasingly militaristic world—what weapons should they be? ... Six important articles have been written by George Fielding Eliot, former Major in the U. S. Army and author of "The Immigrants We Watch," a book which is regarded as the best current work on the subject of national defense. Eliot's second article follows.

By GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT
(Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

There has lately been some mention of a supposed need for two fleets for this country—one in the Atlantic superior to the combined fleets of Germany and Italy; and one in the Pacific superior to the Japanese fleet.

Like an abnormal air increase, this is a dangerous doctrine.

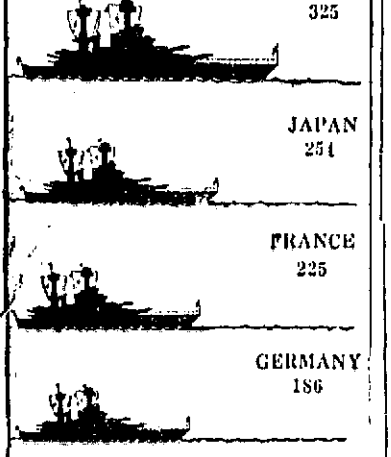

When our present naval expansion program is completed, we shall have 18 undersea battleships, with several older ships in reserve. At that time Germany will have 5 (possibly 6) under-sea battleships, Italy 8, and Japan probably 14 (including 4 which will be getting on in years but have been extensively reconstructed). The combined total for the three so-called aggressor powers will therefore be 27 or 28.

While it is possible for us to build up to this total eventually, it would entail a very large increase in our ship-building facilities, at enormous expense. This expense hardly can be justified if there is any other way of assuring our safety.

It would be largely waste building, useful only for quickly increasing our strength within a short period of time, but having no permanent utility. Our present facilities are adequate for an orderly annual replacement program even to maintain a level of 28 battleships.

The chart above shows the naval strength "on paper" of six big powers. The figures, compiled by the U. S. Navy, indicate total ships of all classes, built, building or appropriated for as of Nov. 15, 1938.

Moreover, it must be considered

(Continued on Page Four)

Wyoming set aside December 10 in commemoration of the day, 69 years ago, that Wyoming territory granted suffrage to women, the first state or territory to grant such privilege.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS. — (P) — January cotton opened Tuesday at 8.51 and closed at 8.56 bid, 8.58 asked. Spot cotton closed dull five points up, middling 8.70.

Answers on Page Two

(Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

Hope Star

WEATHER. Arkansas—Partly cloudy to cloudy Tuesday night and Wednesday; slightly warmer in extreme north portion Tuesday night, cooler in north and central portions Wednesday.

VOLUME 40—NUMBER 70

HOPE, ARKANSAS, TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1939

PRICE 5c COPY

HIT RELIEF POLITICS

Local Chamber of Commerce Hit by Labor Officials

Condemn Action of Board for Taking Sides in Labor Disputes

SHUTDOWN SIX DAYS

Third Conference May Be Held Wednesday;
Pickets Continue

Labor officials of Hope Tuesday hit back at the resolution adopted Monday by the board of directors of the Hope Chamber of Commerce who voted to condemn picketing at the Gunter Brothers sawmill of Hope.

This was the only development Tuesday in the six-day labor strife at the mill. Pickets continued at their posts, changing shifts every eight hours. Fifty men are used on each shift.

W. F. Hutchens, labor official of Hope, said G. E. Warren had been called to Malvern where a strike is under way at the A. B. Cook Lumber company. Hutchens said Warren was due to return to Hope Wednesday and that a third conference with executives of the Gunter firm may be held then.

The resolution adopted by the labor officials follows:

"WHEREAS it has been called to the attention of the union men of Hope, Arkansas, by an article appearing in the Hope Star under date of January 2, 1939, purporting to be a resolution by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of Hope, condemning the members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, saw mill and timber workers division, for their action in peacefully picketing the Gunter Brothers plant because of an existing labor dispute, and

"WHEREAS the said Chamber of Commerce has through its board of directors not only condemned peacefully picketing which is allowed by law, but by their actions and expressions contained in said resolution has sought to turn public sentiment against the members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, mill and timber workers division, who are citizens of Hope, many of them having been for years, simply because they are trying to keep their employment against the wishes of an employer who is attempting to bring workmen from another locality, daily and return them after the day's work is done to another town to spend the money earned in Hope, and

"WHEREAS it has been the policy of the Chamber of Commerce of Hope in the past to urge upon its citizens that they spend their money with the business and professional men of their city.

"THEREFORE, Be It Resolved that we the undersigned officers and members of the union labor organizations of Hope, go on record as condemning the action of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, and if we shall find that the said board of directors express the sentiment of the sentiment of the merchants and businesses of Hope that are members of the Chamber of Commerce, that we advise our membership to refuse to trade or patronize those who approve of the action of the board of directors of the Hope Chamber of Commerce, and

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That we request our membership to make the proper inquiry to ascertain whether or not the business men whom they patronize approve the action of the board of directors of the Hope Chamber of Commerce:

Signed:
United Brotherhood of Carpenters (mill division)—By Asa O'Rear, president.
Moving Picture Machine Operators—By Ray T. Allen, vice-president.
Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers—By Oscar Arterbury, chairman.
Coopers International Union.—By W. F. Hutchens, representative.

No Progress at Malvern
LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—State Labor Commissioner Ed I. McKinley, Sr., said Tuesday that no progress had been made toward settlement of two south Arkansas lumber mill strikes called by local unions of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (A. F. of L.).

McKinley said the strike that tied up the Gunter Brothers sawmill at Hope for several days presented a "difficult situation" there and no immediate prospects of settlement. He expressed the hope, however,

(Continued on Page Three)

CRANIUM CRACKERS

Some of the following statements are true. Some are false. Which are which?

1. Nazir is a mathematical term.
2. Kate Smith is known as "The Last of the Red-Hot Mammies."
3. Douglas Fairbanks is widely known by the Homburg hat he wears.
4. Japan and China are not officially at war.
5. Hitler is a vegetarian.

Answers on Page Two

(Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

Record Amount of Gold Flows Into U. S.

NEW YORK.—(P)—Gold imports this year are expected in financial circles to reach a new record high of around $1,850,000,000. This would compare with $1,600,000,000 in 1937 and $1,740,000,000 during the previous peak period in 1934.

Back of the huge inflow of yellow metal, of course, lies this country's record-breaking export balance—which foreign countries must pay for—and the unsettled condition of markets abroad. Despite the recession, foreign investors found investment here more attractive than at home.

Sheriff Baker to Have Hope Office

Location to Be Announced
Within Few Days,
He Says

Sheriff Clarence E. Baker said Tuesday that he would open an office in Hope in the near future for the convenience of the public.

In the meantime, the sheriff said he could be reached by telephone at his residence in Hope or at his office in Washington.

Mr. Baker said he had received requests from practically every township in the county for commissioned deputies. He said he understood that a new law required all deputies to make bond of at least $5,000.

He said the cost of this was $25 for each deputy—and that the cost would have to be paid by the deputy.

Daladier Brings Pledge to Tunis

France Ready to Go to War With Italy to Defend Colony

TUNIS, Tunisia.—(P)—Premier Daladier brought assurances to the Bey of Tunis Tuesday that all France's military forces are ready to defend Tunisia, if necessary, against any Italian threat against French dominion.

The premier of France made a triumphal entry into Tunis at noon, escorted by native cavalry. Crowds smashed through the police lines to cheer Daladier wildly.

He told the Bey that France is determined to keep her protectorate over Tunisia, even if it means war with Italy.

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then check against the authoritative answers below:

1. Is it necessary to write a thank-you note for any gift received by mail?
2. Should you name the gift when you write a thank-you note, or just call it "your beautiful gift"?
3. Should you feel badly if a person unexpectedly gives you a Christmas gift too late for you to give him one?
4. Is it good taste to show the gifts you receive at Christmas to friends who drop in during the holidays?
5. Would graciousness demand that you write a note during the holidays to the friend you forgot to send a Christmas greeting to—but who remembered you?
6. What would you do if—
(a) You are alone in a city and are fortunate enough to spend Christmas Day in a friend's home—
(b) Write a note afterward saying how much being there means to you?
(c) Consider your spoken thanks enough?
7. Send flowers to your hostess—
(a) With a word of appreciation on the card you enclose?

Answers

1. Yes.
2. Name the gift.
3. No.
4. Certainly—if you like.
5. Yes—saying how happy you were to have his card and wishing him a happy New Year.
6. Best "What Would You Do?" solution—either (a) or (c).

(Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

Goebbels, No. 2 German Leader, Is Alleged Beaten in Scandal

Reported to Have Imprisoned Man for Lovely Wife

Sends Husband of Film
Star to Prison, Then Courts Wife

OWN WIFE SUEING

Pending Goebbels Divorce
Action Shakes All Nazi Germany

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON.—Whatever the truth of widely circulated reports that Dr. Joseph Goebbels was almost beaten to death by friends of Gustav Froelich—who was put in a concentration camp in order that Goebbels might make love to the lovely Frau Froelich—one thing is certain: it will take plenty of propagandizing to keep the dwarfish Goebbels in his powerful position as Reich propaganda minister.

With Hitler reportedly enraged at the behavior of his mouthpiece, Goebbels, subtlest of strategists and master of psychology, will have to pull one of the slickest tricks of his remarkable career to keep his high place.

Exposure of his philanderings is a severe blow to Nazi dignity.

Goebbels is the world's best showman. He has pulled off spectacles that make the feats of Barnum and Rickard look like a bunny run.

It is no easy job to spoon-feed some 80 million minds. That is the task of little Goebbels. Next to Hitler he has been the most influential man in Germany.

It has been Goebbels who led the way, rabble rousing, creating Nazi incidents, staid jangle political parades, selling the dome of National Socialism.

Goebbels is an unusually well-educated man. He reads Virgil for relaxation, delights in the company of artists, musicians, scholars.

Young Goebbels was studying the fine arts when his German contemporaries were mired in mud in World War trenches.

He was physically unfit for military service.

Born with a clubfoot at Rheydt, Germany, Oct. 29, 1897, he was the son of a steel foreman and a blacksmith's daughter.

Tremendously enough, the man who was to spread the radical orthodoxy of the Third Reich as a nation of Nordic Siegfrieds sprang himself from a tribe of dwarfish Ribbungs.

At 17 he went to college. Drifting from one university to another, seven in all, he graduated finally from Heidelberg with a doctor of philosophy degree in 1921. He won high honors.

Young Goebbels matured to 5 feet 4 inches; he was swarthy of complexion, with snapping black eyes and raven black hair.

Germany at the time (1921) was a fertile field for the young crusader. Orators agitated from every corner. It was seething with revolution. One of these was Adolf Hitler.

Goebbels met the future Fuehrer first in 1922 at a students mass meeting.

Shortly, the French entered the Ruhr and Goebbels followed as an agitator. In 1924 he became editor of a weekly journal in Elberfeld devoted solely to revolutionary propaganda.

Master of His Work
His rise from that date was swift. Soon he was made district commander for the national Socialists. In 1926 he was transferred to Berlin. He was named finally minister of propaganda and enlightenment.

As such the slender Goebbels who might easily be mistaken for a messenger boy, proceeded to "organize the thought" of the Germans.

He did it through radio, newspapers, gigantic mass meetings, every conceivable device of public and censorship and propaganda. "I can play upon public opinion," Goebbels once boasted, "as upon the strings of a mighty organ."

His wife, charming Magda Goebbels, who has long held the eye and ear of Hitler, is admittedly the most powerful woman in the Reich. She has often served as Hitler's hostess.

The family—they have four children—has been the center of the Nazi cultural life.

But now Frau Goebbels plans a divorce. Hitler is the only person who can stop her.

Because they resented his alleged attentions to Czech film star Lida Baarova, above, friends of her husband are rumored to have beaten Dr. Paul Goebbels, second ranking Nazi, so severely he is confined in seclusion in a Berlin clinic. Her husband, actor Gustav Froelich, was in a concentration camp at the time.

Goebbels Scandal Is Parallel of Uriah's Wife in the Bible

King David Coveted Beautiful Bath-sheba and Sent Her Husband Uriah Off to War to Be Conveniently Killed

The reported scandal of Germany's No. 2 Nazi leader, Goebbels, sending a man off to prison so he could make love to his beautiful wife, strikes the editor of The Star as a "dead-ringer" for the Bible story of King David's sin against Uriah the Hittite.

The full text of the Bible story of King David and the beautiful Bath-sheba follows (Second Samuel, chapters 11 and 12, American Standard Version):

2 And it came to pass at eventide, that David arose from off his bed, and walked upon the roof of the king's house: and from the roof he saw a woman bathing; and the woman was very beautiful to look upon. 3 And David sent messengers, and took her; and she came in unto him; and he lay with her (for she was purified from her uncleanness); and she returned unto her house. 4 And the woman conceived, and she sent and told David, and said, I am with child. 5 And David sent and told Bath-sheba, saying, Behold, I have sent thee. 6 And David sent to Joab, saying, Send me Uriah the Hittite. And Joab sent Uriah to David. 7 And when Uriah was come unto him, David asked of him how Joab did, and how the people fared, and how the war prospered. 8 And David said to Uriah, Go down to thy house, and wash thy feet. And Uriah departed out of the king's house, and there followed him a mess of food from the king. 9 But Uriah slept at the door of the king's house, and went not down to his house. 10 And when they had told David, saying, Uriah went not down to his house, David said unto Uriah, Art thou not come from a journey? wherefore didst thou not go down unto thy house? 11 And Uriah said unto David, The ark, and Israel, and Judah, abide in booths; and my lord Joab, and the servants of my lord, are encamped in the open field; shall I then go into my house, to eat and to drink, and to lie with my wife? as thou livest, and as thy soul liveth, I will not do this thing. 12 And David said to Uriah, Tarry here today also, and tomorrow I will send thee. So Uriah abode in Jerusalem that day, and the morrow. 13 And when David had called him, he did eat and drink before him; and he made him drunk: and at even he went out to lie on his bed with the servants of his lord, but went not down to his house. 14 And it came to pass in the morning, that David wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hand of Uriah. 15 And he wrote in the letter, saying, Set ye Uriah in the forefront of the hottest battle, and retire ye from him, that he may be smitten, and die. 16 And it came to pass, when Joab kept watch upon the city, that he assigned Uriah unto the place where he knew that valiant men were. 17 And the men of the city went out, and fought with Joab; and there fell some of the people, even of the servants of David; and Uriah the Hittite died also. 18 Then Joab sent and told David all the things concerning the war; 19 and he charged the messenger, saying, When thou hast made an end of telling all the things concerning the war unto the king, thou shalt say unto him, Thus saith Joab, I have obeyed all thy commandments: but the sword devoured me, and I have slain many men, and I have wounded many men, but I have not won the victory. 20 And the messenger came and told David all that Joab had said. 21 And David said unto the messenger, Thus shalt thou say unto Joab, Thus saith the king, Thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also. 22 So the messenger went, and came and showed David all that Joab had sent him for. 23 And the messenger said unto David, The men prevailed against us, and came out unto us into the field, and we were upon them, even unto the entrance of the gate. 24 And the shooters shot at thy servants from off the wall; and some of the king's servants are dead, and thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also. 25 Then David said unto the messenger, Thus shalt thou say unto Joab, Let not this thing displease thee, for the sword devoureth one as well as another; make thy battle more strong against the city, and overthrow it: and encourage thou him. 26 And when the wife of Uriah

Senate Campaign Body Also Slaps Revenue Collector

Sustains McClellan Charge Against Adkins in Senate Race

HOPKINS UNNAMED

No Direct Reference to Relief Head, Now Commerce Secretary

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The senate campaign expenditures committee charged Tuesday that relief funds in several states had been diverted for political purposes.

The committee made no specific criticism of Harry Hopkins, former WPA administrator who recently was named Secretary of Commerce, but it called for legislation "to make impossible further offenses of this character."

Concluding its long inquiry into the 1938 senatorial contests, the committee offered 16 suggestions for cleaning up elections.

It cleared all candidates personally of a wide variety of accusations.

Sustain Arkansas Charge
The committee sustained a charge that the internal revenue collector of Arkansas directly assisted in the management of Senator Hattie W. Caraway's successful primary campaign last August, but recognized "such practices have been common in the past."

The Arkansas inquiry was based on charges filed by former Representative John L. McClellan, of the Sixth district, one of Mrs. Caraway's opponents, that Revenue Collector Homer M. Adkins and other federal officials had been unduly active in the campaign; and on counter-charges by Adkins concerning the alleged solicitation of contributions from postmasters in the Sixth district.

Said the committee investigators: "The committee recommended that the senate take under consideration the enactment of appropriate legislation with reference to political activities of this character. The committee did not sustain charges from Arkansas against other federal officials mentioned in the charge."

Dies Body Reports
WASHINGTON.—(P)—The Dies committee placed responsibility on the Department of Labor Tuesday for a "large part" of the subversive espionage activities and propaganda in the United States.

Reporting to the house on its five-months inquiry into un-American activities, the committee accused the department of failure to enforce the deportation laws.

The committee expressed the belief that the National Labor Relations Board should be subjected to a thorough investigation to determine to what extent the board members and employees "approve Communist views" expressed by David J. Saposs, NLRB economist.

ICC Gives Report
WASHINGTON.—(P)—The Interstate Commerce Commission told congress Tuesday that the railroad problem can not be solved like a cross-word puzzle. It blamed the carriers' situation chiefly on increased competition in transportation.

The long, academic report offered no specific solution for the railroads' problem; it defended the ICC type of governmental organization, and voiced a sharp warning against politics in utility regulation.

heard that Uriah her husband was dead, she made lamentation for her husband. 27 And when the mourning was past, David sent and took her home to his house, and she became his wife, and bare him a son. But the thing that David had done displeased Jehovah.

12 And Jehovah sent Nathan unto David. And he came unto him, and said unto him, There were two men in one city; the one rich, and the other poor. 2 The rich man had exceeding many flocks and herds; 3 but the poor man had nothing, save one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished up; and it grew up together with him, and with his children; it did eat of his own morsel, and drank of his own cup, and lay in his bosom, and was unto him a daughter. 4 And there came a traveller unto the rich man, and he spared to take of his own flock and of his own herd, to dress for the wayfaring man that was come unto him, but took the poor man's lamb, and dressed it for the man that was come to him. 5 And David's anger was greatly kindled against the man; and he said to Nathan, As Jehovah liveth, the man that hath done this is worthy to die; 6 and he shall restore the lamb fourfold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity. 7 And Nathan said to David, Thou art the man.

Hope Star

Star of Hope, 1899; Press, 1927. Consolidated January 18, 1929

O Justice, Deliver Thy Herald From False Report!

Published every week-day afternoon by Star Publishing Co., Inc.
C. E. Palmer & Alex. H. Washburn, at The Star building, 212-214 South Walnut street, Hope, Ark.

C. E. PALMER, President
ALEX. H. WASHBURN, Editor and Publisher

(AP)—Means Associated Press.
(NEA)—Means Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n.

Subscription Rate (Always Payable in Advance): By city carrier, per week, 15c; per month $5c; one year $50.00. By mail, in Hempstead, Nevada, Howard, Miller and Lafayette counties, $3.50 per year; elsewhere $5.50.

Member of The Associated Press: The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for republication of all news dispatches credited to it or otherwise credited in this paper and also the local news published herein.

Charges on Tributes, Etc.: Charge will be made for all tributes, cards of thanks, resolutions, or memorials, concerning the departed. Commercial newspapers hold to this policy in the news columns to protect their readers from a deluge of space-taking memorials. The Star disclaims responsibility or the safe-keeping or return of any unsolicited manuscripts.

America's Pacifism Undergoes a Change

The solidest truth in American politics is that Americans are collectively a nation of pacifists. But a change has been coming over the face of the waters, of late. American pacifism is no longer blind and emotional; it has stopped telling itself that the two great oceans are impassable barriers, and it is doing some heavy thinking about the price that may have to be paid for peace.

One of the most significant developments of the year is the latest "sampling" of public opinion made by Fortune Magazine.

This survey indicates that the American public today believes in what is known as "collective security"—joint action by the democracies to restrain such suggestive statesmen as Hitler and Mussolini.

It shows that Americans would be willing to fight to prevent conquest of Canada, Mexico or the Philippines, but that they are not now willing to take up arms in the defense of south America.

It shows that they disapprove of the Munich settlement but feel that it was justified as the sole means of preserving peace; but it shows that they also believe that a general European war will come before long anyway, and that when it does come the United States will be drawn into it.

Assuming that the Fortune survey is accurate—and it has an excellent record for accuracy to date—American thinking has changed in a way that is little short of astounding.

The nation is still isolationist—but isolationist with a difference.

For one thing, it apparently realizes that its own fate is tied in with the fate of the rest of the world. The dismemberment of Czechoslovakia and the trend of world events since then seem to have set Americans thinking. Former surveys showed a great majority of Americans believing that their country could stay out of any war that might start in Europe; now they do not think so.

But the changed attitude is not simply one of pessimism. Pessimism in itself can be as blind and unthinking as optimism. According to this survey, the American people are not at all resigned to the drift toward war. They are willing to do whatever needs to be done to stave war off—and they have gone to the point where they see international co-operation as the best means of accomplishing that end.

Contrast this with the attitude of the post-war era, with the frantic screaming that went up when American adherence to the World Court was proposed, with the oratory of our self-appointed watchdogs who take the stump whenever a president or a secretary of state glances beyond our own borders... make taking place, and you can see what a vast shift in public sentiment has been.

No more important job faces the leaders of American politics and American thought than to check up on this shift, verify it or prove it wrong, and prepare to act accordingly.

FOR RENT

FOR RENT—2 room, furnished apartment, private bath. Phone 429-W, 622 So. Elm street. 29-3tp

FOR RENT—Modern three-room furnished apartment. Mrs. B. C. Lewis, phone 16-F-11. 30-3tp

FOR RENT—Front Bedroom, day bath and shower. 1/2 block from town. Phone 505-W. 31-3tp

Wanted to Rent

WANTED TO RENT—Nice two bedroom house unfurnished. Will lease if necessary. Apply by letter to Hope Star. 28-3tp

Services Offered

SERVICES OFFERED—I will open an office January 1 for collection of accounts and notes. The public may list accounts with me for collection. Mrs. A. D. Monroe, 111 West Third Street, Tom Carrel apartments. 27-3tp

CLASSIFIED

COLUMNS OF OPPORTUNITIES
The More You Tell the Quicker You Sell
You Can Talk to Only One Man
Want Ads Talk to Thousands
SELL-RENT-BUY OR SWAP

All Want Ads cash in advance Not taken over the Phone
One time—2 word, minimum 30c Three times—3½c word, minimum 50c
Six times—6c word, minimum 90c One month—18c word, minimum $2.70
Rates are for continuous insertions only.

Wanted

WANTED TO BUY—A good milk cow, must give 4 gallons milk. S. L. Thompson, Okay, Ark. 30-7tp

Lost

LOST—Bay horse mule, 3 years old, weight 800 pounds. Reward. Notify T. F. Harris, Emmet Route 1, or R. M. LaGrone, Jr. Hope. 30-3tp

For Sale

FOR SALE—Two 1100 pound mules, 4 pure bred Poland China Gills, six springing Jersey Heifers, 3 fresh milk cows. West Bros. Hope Route 3. 30-6tp

FOR SALE—or trade for cattle 16 head mules and mares. Ages three to seven. Ben Robinson, Hope, Rl. 3. 2-3tp

SEIZED FOR DEBT—Must be sold, nice house and lot. Good location. See Tyler, 118 South Main street. 3-3tp

FOR SALE—Johnson grass and clover hay mixed, 25c per bale. C. G. Critchlow, Emmet, Ark. 3-3tp

85 acres, 5 room house, tenant house, two cribs. Deep well, 1½ miles city limits on gravelled highway. Price $700.00 if sold by 10 th. TYLER Boyetts Barber Shop 3-3tp

Today's Answers to CRANIUM CRACKERS

Questions on Page One
1. False. A nazir is a court official in India.
2. False. Sophie Tucker is known as "The Last of the Red-Hot Mamas."
3. False. Anthony Eden is widely known for the Homburg hat he wears.
4. True. Japan and China are not officially at war.
5. True. Hitler is a vegetarian.

Negro Revival Meeting
The Rev. N. King of Fresno is conducting a revival meeting at the Garrett Chapel Baptist church, negro, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The meeting opened Monday night. The public is invited to attend, the Rev. F. R. Williams, pastor, said.

The Family Doctor

T. M. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Buerger's Disease—Improper Blood Circulation—Is Serious Matter

First of two articles.

When a human being finds that inflammatory changes have taken place in the blood vessels which result in failure of the blood to circulate, particularly in the feet, he is confronted with a serious condition. Frequently these columns have discussed thromboangiitis obliterans, which is the technical name for the condition called Buerger's disease.

One of the most serious possible results is, of course, the loss of limbs which have to be removed because the tissues have died.

The disease mostly affects men between the ages of 20 and 30. At one time it was found that it affected particularly the Jewish people and that it was almost invariably associated with men. More recently numerous cases have been found among women as well. Out of almost 1000 patients seen in one of our largest clinics, 28 per cent of the patients were Jews and 72 per cent were not Jewish. Ten years ago the figures showed that 55 per cent of the patients were Jews and 45 per cent were not Jewish.

One of the most interesting aspects of this condition is the relationship of this disease to those who smoke excessively. These patients were classified as to the number of cigarettes which they smoked daily, varying from five in the first group to 20 or more cigarettes per day in the fourth group.

Some of those in the fourth group used as many as 60 cigarettes a day. One of the patients was in the habit of smoking 20 cigarettes daily before breakfast. Ninety-three per cent of these patients were cigarette smokers and 66 per cent might be considered as smoking excessively.

Moreover, the authorities found that it was almost impossible to persuade patients with this disease to stop smoking.

Now it has been estimated by many studies that smoking does have definite effects on the blood vessels and on the circulation of the blood. Since the condition is so serious patients frequently ask what their expectancy is for the future. The physicians who have recently studied almost a thousand cases believe that early diagnosis and education of the patients concerning the nature of this disease combined with care of the hands and feet will do more to lengthen the lives of those patients than any other factor.

NEXT: Care of the feet.

Murders declined, burglaries increased, in the first nine months of 1929 compared with the similar period in 1927.

So They Say

I thought the Indian said something to me—Chinaman drunk when he was arrested as he wrestled with cigar store Indian.

A girl has to have sweaters.—Washington University co-ed replying to professors' complaints about knitting during lectures.
No matter how it is camouflaged, it is charity.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt discussing distribution of Christmas baskets.

No group of public servants can afford to rest upon its laurels.—Undersecretary of late Summer Welles.
It's a relief to know he is dead.—John Turecy, Cleveland, speaking of his father whom another son shot to death because he abused their mother.

I have been treated very courteously.—Arthur Colegrove, Pennsylvania state secretary of property and supplies after leaving grand jury room.

The American people will not indefinitely tolerate scarcity among abundance.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Life can never be a path of roses for any of us.—Governor Davey of Ohio extending Christmas greetings.

Students Get Paid For Their Classwork

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—(AP)—Students in the dramatic classes of Prof. Frederick H. Koch at the University of North Carolina write plays and get paid for them.

Koch, who is director of the Carolina Playmakers, has just distributed more than $200 in royalties to members of the organization whose plays were published in "Carolina Folk Plays."

BABIES

Even babies know you can't beat the Hope Star Want Ads for immediate results. As one prominent baby said, in answer to the question "What newspaper do you recommend for fast Want Ad results?" "glub dub dub glub da da. Which means (we're told) "A Hope Star Want Ad is the cheapest way to buy, trade, sell or rent." Why not prove it for yourself!

Send Your Classified Ad by Mail or Bring to Hope Star

OUR BOARDING HOUSE ... with ... MAJOR HOOPLE

His best friends and severest critics.

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

Alley oop

Wash tubbs

Freckles and his friends

Myra North, special nurse

Guy 'Comes Back'

OUT OUR WAY

The privileged class

Oh!!!

Speak to him, Foozy

Here come the rebels

Here come the rebels

Here come the rebels

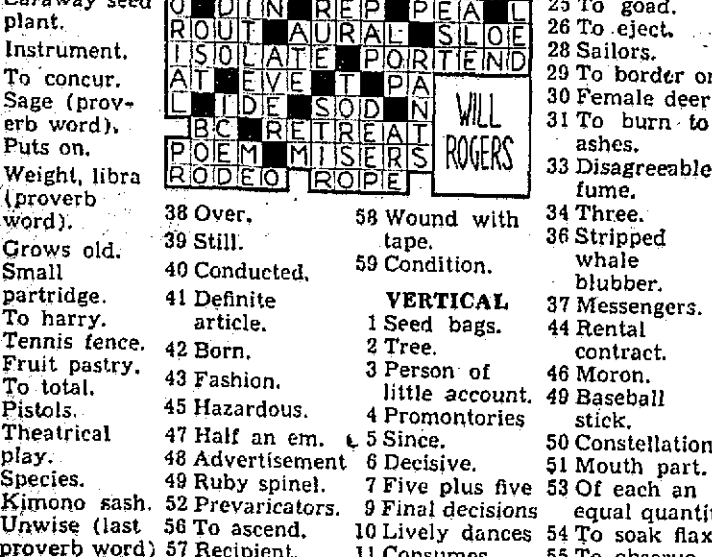

Here come the rebels

PICTURED PROVERB

Four-word proverb illustrated by this sketch is concealed in this puzzle.

HORIZONTAL
1 Cent (first word of pictured proverb).
5 To perform.
8 Caraway seed plant.
13 Instrument.
14 To concur.
16 Sage (proverb word).
17 Puts on.
18 Weight, libra (proverb word).
19 Grows old.
20 Small partridge.
22 To harry.
24 Tennis fence.
25 Fruit pastry.
27 To total.
30 Theatrical play.
32 Species.
33 Kimono sash.
36 Unwise (last proverb word).

VERTICAL
12 Muddle.
14 Monkey.
15 Anglo-Saxon letter.
21 And.
23 Lava.
25 To goad.
26 To eject.
28 Sailors.
29 To border on.
30 Female deer.
31 To burn to ashes.
33 Disagreeable fume.
34 Three.
36 Stripped whale blubber.
37 Messengers.
44 Rental contract.
46 Moron.
49 Baseball stick.
50 Constellation.
51 Mouth part.
53 Of each an equal quantity.
54 To soak flax.
55 To observe.

Society

MRS. SID HENRY TELEPHONE 821

Spread the bright board,
Let many candles shine,
Bring in the ruddy hoard
Of tree and vine,
Welcome each guest,
Let hand clasp friendly hand
With all the zest
Of those who understand.
The time is sweet
For love's ingathering,
And friendship is a sweet
And gracious thing,
But let no lonely shiver without,
Lest our gay comradeship grow dim
With doubt.
Crown love
With music, let the singing strings
Awaken echoes of forgotten things.
This is a time
For song and laughter free,
Rhythm and rhyme
And merry minstrelsy.—Selected.

On January 1, 1889 Miss Earl Johnson, daughter of Mrs. Emma Johnson and the late Edward Johnson of Columbus and Hope and Mr. Harry Briant, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Briant of Hope were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was held by the Rev. A. J. Cheatham in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends in the First Presbyterian church.

The above announcement was of special interest as the wedding united two of Hempstead county's most prominent families, and was outstanding as a social event.
On Monday evening, January 2, 1939 the 50th anniversary of this happy event was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Briant on North Hervey street, thus rounding out 50 years of love and devotion, not only for themselves, but they have carried along with them, a majority of the old friends, and new friends made along the journey of half a century.
For this outstanding brilliant event, the handsome Briant home, which provides such a beautiful setting for any function was a bower of lovely cut flowers and ferns. The golden theme was stressed in the exquisite yellow roses, chrysanthemums, daffodils and calla lilies that were used throughout the rooms, reflecting their beauty against a background of graceful southern smiles. Dainty golden bells added their significance to the occasion, hanging from the chandeliers and places of entrance and were also used as memory favors. The guests were greeted by Mrs. Roy Johnson and were met in the reception room by Mrs. N. T. Jewell, Mrs. Ralph Rounton, Mrs. J. S. Wilson Jr., of Columbus, and Miss Mary Billingsley and were directed to the cloak room by Mrs. J. C. Broyles and Miss Mary Arnold.

In the music room they were received by Mr. and Mrs. Briant and the following who were attendants at their wedding, Mrs. L. A. Foster, Mrs. Mattie Greer of Lewisville, Mrs. T. R. Billingsley, Mrs. Dorsey McRae, who acted as flower girl, Mrs. Eugenia Knighton of Little Rock, who played the wedding music, Dr. and Mrs. Thos. Brewster completed the line.
Mrs. W. Y. Foster and Mrs. T. S. McDavitt invited the guests into the dining room, where the same brilliant color scheme was observed in the decorations. The Beauty Table was laid with a handsome lace cloth over gold flowers in the chosen shade, yellow candles burned in double holders at the four corners, the confections were in the chosen color note. Extending to the left of the Beauty Table were Mrs. Roy Johnson, Mrs. Carter Johnson, Mrs. Robert Wilson, Mrs. Terrell Cornelius and Miss Lucy Hanna.
Misses Katherine Arnold and Mary Sue Anderson were in charge of the guest book, and the many lovely and handsome gifts presented to the honorees.

A large number of friends, including guests from Texarkana, Little Rock, Fulton, Columbus, Washington and Lewisville called during the hours from 8 to 10 to congratulate "Miss Earl" and "Mr. Harry" as they are known to most of us on this memorable and happy occasion, wishing for their continued health and happiness.

The Bay View Reading club will meet at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with Dr. Etta Champlin and Miss Marnie Twitchell as hostesses at the Champlin home on South Elm street. Mrs. Hugh Jones will lead the program on Historical Old Texas Trails.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Benson were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Benson in the J. W. Velvin home in Lewisville.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Schroeder of Manson Iowa spent the week-end with their daughter Mrs. Ben Haynes and Mr. Haynes in the Gus Haynes home, on route to Gulfport, Miss., for the winter.

Mrs. A. F. Cagle, Miss Annis Cagle and the two boys, Paul and Singleton and R. Tracy of Owensboro, Ky., were New Year's guests of Mrs. L. E. Singleton and Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Singleton.

Miss Frances Holt of Pine Bluff spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. M. A. Holt and other home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Terrell Cornelius and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Schroeder of Manson, Ia., were Sunday visitors in Hot Springs.

Winfred Dabbs and Frank DeSmith of Albuquerque, N. M., were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Wellborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Smith spent the week-end in Vicksburg, Miss. They were Sunday guests of Rev. and Mrs. Wallace R. Rogers.

Mrs. Rupert Blakely and children of Little Rock were New Year's guests of Mrs. L. E. Singleton and Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Singleton.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Waddle and mother, Mrs. Inez Grotto have returned to their home in Norman, Okla., after a holiday visit with Mr. Waddle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Waddle.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wylie of Shreveport, La., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Mills and other

TUE. NEW WED.
"TIM MCCOY—in 'FIGHTING SHADOWS'"
—Also—
Ann Shirley—in—"Girls School"
Coming! Thurs-Fri.
BOBBY BRENN—in "BREAKING THE ICE"
SAT.—"COME ON RANGERS"
SUN.—DEANNA DURBIN
"That Certain Age"

BUTANE Gas Systems
For Rural Homes
Harry W. Shiver
PLUMBING—ELECTRICAL

GUM BLOCKS
We Will Now Take in a Further Quantity of Bound Sweet Gum Blocks.
Payment for this Timber is made at the time the delivery is made.
For Specifications and Prices Apply To:
Hope Heading Co.
Phone 245

We Invite You to See Our Complete Line of John Deere
Farm Implements
Our Prices and
Terms Will Interest You.
Hope Hardware COMPANY

relative.

Mrs. Mary Bullard announces the marriage of her daughter, Nina Mae to Danny Hamilton, son of D. W. Hamilton of Columbus. The wedding was solemnized on Sunday, January 1, in Arkadelphia, with the pastor of the First Baptist church officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Downs announce the arrival of a little son, on Tuesday December 27, at Julia Chester hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Frith, Misses Gwendolyn and Christine Frith spent the week-end in Little Rock visiting relatives and attending the wedding of Miss Thelma Frith and Albert Bagley of Dallas, Texas. Miss Frith, a niece of Mr. Frith, has been in Brazil as a missionary for the past five years but spent this year in the States. They will sail for Brazil in February.

Embezzlement Is Charged Sheriff

Sheriff Rucker of Saline County Is Formally Accused

BENTON, Ark.—Information charging Sheriff Virgil R. Rucker of Saline county with embezzlement (three counts) of public funds were filed by Prosecuting Attorney William H. Glover here Monday. His bond was set at $5,000 by Circuit Judge Thomas E. Toler, which was furnished.

The sheriff waived formal arraignment and pleaded not guilty. Judge Toler entered a formal suspension order against Rucker, prohibiting him from performing further duties as sheriff and collector pending adjudication of the case. The court also granted a petition of the prosecuting attorney to preserve the records of the sheriff. Pending disposition of charges against Rucker, Coroner James P. Sims will serve as sheriff, but not as collector, the court announced. The coroner served the warrants against Rucker today.

Rucker is charged with shortage in settlements with the state, the town of Haskell and Saline county. The state shortage is alleged to be $14,935.75 in regular tax settlements and $119.08 in settlement of delinquent personal taxes collected in 1938. The alleged shortage involving Haskell is said to be $208.54 and Saline county's claim is $360.34 for delinquent personal taxes collected in 1938 and assessed in 1938.

This Freight Train Would Circle Earth Nine Times

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Imagine a freight train more than 230,000 miles long, nine times the circumference of the earth, and covering nearly every mile of track that has been laid in the United States!

This gargantuan train-load would be the result of coupling all the 30,000,000 car loads of freight during 1938 and would require thousands of locomotives (adding countless miles to the imaginary train) to pull it.

Local Chamber of

(Continued on Page Three)

that conferences would be started Tuesday or Wednesday at Malvern in an effort to end the strike called by union workers at the A. B. Cook Lumber company there.

Both Hope and Malvern mills are closed behind picket lines. Neither employer had attempted to resume operations. A. F. of L. union members of the four other A. F. of L. unions joined the Carpenters and Joiners in a sharp exchange with directors of the Hope Chamber of Commerce who Monday adopted a resolution condemning the union picket line.

G. E. G. E. Warren of Indianapolis, international representative of the union, went from Hope to Malvern Tuesday to talk with Cook mill workers.

McKinley pointed out that the Hope strike concerned seniority rights of mill workers who were let out when ownership of the mill changed hands. He said the present management insisted that the men were not Gunter Brothers employees and that they were not required to recognize seniority rights of the workers.

Labor Commissioner McKinley said the strike at Malvern was called because the Cook company refused to discharge several men who failed to maintain their union obligations. McKinley said he believed this situation could be settled without a great deal of difficulty.

Economy Is to Be

(Continued from Page One)

which have remained stationary as to the rate of tax assessment. New taxes have been added as old ones were abandoned.

For example, the liquor tax, non-existent in 1934, has been steadily increased since 1935, until it has become the fifth largest revenue producer of the special taxes. Bridge tolls abolished by the 1938 legislature, yielded $2,257,264.69 between January 1, 1934, and April 1, 1938, the date it was abolished.

BARBS

The Roosevelt grin is to flourish and gleam, it would seem. FDR gets a toothbrush and soap in his Christmas stocking, according to Mrs. Roosevelt. A package left behind in a liquor store by a customer was found to contain seven sticks of dynamite. Prohibitionists say it is a fair exchange.

Mrs. Roosevelt would like to have a few nines to attend to the smaller affairs of the nation without the help of the smaller affairs committee of 140,000,000 people.

Chamberlain says he's still waiting on a "sign" from Hitler indicating he wants peace in Europe. Get that "sign" on the dotted line, Neville.

relative.

Mrs. Mary Bullard announces the marriage of her daughter, Nina Mae to Danny Hamilton, son of D. W. Hamilton of Columbus. The wedding was solemnized on Sunday, January 1, in Arkadelphia, with the pastor of the First Baptist church officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Downs announce the arrival of a little son, on Tuesday December 27, at Julia Chester hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Frith, Misses Gwendolyn and Christine Frith spent the week-end in Little Rock visiting relatives and attending the wedding of Miss Thelma Frith and Albert Bagley of Dallas, Texas. Miss Frith, a niece of Mr. Frith, has been in Brazil as a missionary for the past five years but spent this year in the States. They will sail for Brazil in February.

In the Nazis' Great Scandal

Gustav Froelich with his Czech wife, Lida Baarova, whose youth and beauty caught Goebbels' eye.

Herr Goebbels has an eye for the young and beautiful. Here he is talking to Erna Sack, German songstress.

New Use for Old Ash Can Lid

Here's how to have fun with the cover of your old ash can—provided you live close to Yosemite National Park in California and like sliding down a mountain side.

Tunisians' Smashing Protest

Things Italian in Tunis were in danger when Tunisians demonstrated against Italy's demands for France's colonies, including Tunis. Here a group of Mobile Guards protect the Italian tourist agency, whose windows the demonstrators succeeded in smashing.

Martin Elected G.O.P. House Chief

Massachusetts Publisher Is Minority Leader in House

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Republicans in the House elected Representative Martin Monday night to lead a minority strengthened by the November elections. Martin, publisher-lawmaker, has interpreted the general elections as a mandate for congress to be more independent of the president.

Martin was nominated by Representative Treadway of Massachusetts as a man behind whom all factions of the party could unite in preparation for the 1940 presidential election. Representative Wadsworth of New York, for whom friends had campaigned for the leadership, was among the many members who congratulated Martin.

Martin, regarded by many associates as a "middle-of-the-road" Republican having neither ultra-liberal nor ultra-conservative leanings, had been chairman of the Congressional Campaign Committee which helped swell the Republican membership of the new House to 169. He also had been assistant to the minority leader he will succeed—Representative Snell of New York, who retired voluntarily after 24 years at the capitol.

A Lot of Red Tape For One Customer

DES MOINES, Iowa.—(AP)—The Nebraska power company of Omaha obtained a franchise from the Iowa commerce commission to build a power line in Pottawattamie county. To get it the company had to:
1. File a bulky application.
2. Draw a map showing the area to be served.
3. Advertise a complete report of the contemplated improvement three times. The franchise granted is for a half-mile line to serve a single customer.

Wheat Subsidized

NEW YORK.—(AP)—For the first time in history, the Federal Government subsidized the export of a major farm product in 1938, wheat. This was done through the medium of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corp.

Values of Pound and Franc Shaken by Threats of War

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The flight of capital to the United States during 1938 is vividly sketched by the rising trend of the dollar in terms of principal foreign currencies.

The French franc, for example, crashed from a January peak of 340 1/4 cents to 257 cents at the time of the Munich settlement in September, a slump of 25 per cent.

This stemmed partly from the "re-valuation" carried out by Premier Daladier's decrees, and partly from the hurried departure of nervous capital.

The British pound suffered a smaller setback, in terms of the dollar, by slumping from a February top of $5.03 1/2 to $4.60 in September, down nine per cent.

Weakness in this instance resulted from the unbalanced trade position and an accompanying flight of skittish funds.

High C's Sailed High Seas of 1938 News

Six C's flew high into the news during 1938. Here they are:

Chamberlain, by his flight to Munich.

Corrigan, by his wrong-way flight to Ireland.

Coster, by his frenzied financial flight—and crash.

Cunningham, by flying faster around the running track than any other human.

Ciano, Italian foreign minister, by flying around Europe on Il Duce's missions.

Codreanu, Iron Guard chief, by his fatal flight from a Rumanian prison.

Missouri dairy herd improvement association estimate cost of feed represents only 50 per cent of the expense of keeping a cow. The other 50 per cent goes for overhead, depreciation, interest and labor.

Constipated?

"For 30 years I had constipation, awful gas, bloating, headaches and back pains. Adlerika helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, plus anything I want. Never felt better." Mrs. Mabel Schott.

ADLERIKA

JOHN S. GIBSON DRUG CO.

Many Slain for China Peace Plan

Hundreds More Under Arrest Following Expulsion of Wang

HONGKONG, British Crown Colony.—(AP)—Usually well-informed Chinese said Tuesday that a "considerable number" of persons had been executed in Chungking, with hundreds more under arrest, following the expulsion of former Premier Wang Ching-Wei from the Chinese government party for "deserting his post and suing for peace in contradiction to national policy."

Tulane University scholarships and student loans during the 1937-38 school year totaled nearly $150,000.

How to Ease CHEST COLD MISERY

FIRST—massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. This relieves the distress.

THEN—to make its long-continued action last even longer, spread a thick layer of VapoRub on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

LONG AFTER sleep comes. VapoRub keeps working—loosens phlegm—eases muscular soreness or tightness—clears air-passages—eases coughing—relieves local congestion.

Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

VICKS VAPORUB

NOTICE

All parties owing accounts to the City Market will please call at Moore & Hawthornes and pay same.

Priced TO CLEAR

Over 300 Pairs Ladies Fall SHOES

Values to $6.75

SELBY, NATURAL POISE, CONNIE, and PARIS FASHION SHOES. All good fall colors and styles. Suede and kid leathers in wines, blacks, and browns. Medium and high heel styles. All styles and all sizes. Original prices on these shoes—$6.75, $6.00, $5.00, $3.98.

$2.00

To Get Your Choice Come Early

Values to $3.00

Kid and suede leathers in popular fall colors and styles. High or low heel styles in all sizes. Platforms, wedges, and all the other popular fall styles. You will be the loser if you miss out on this group. Come early before they are picked over. Sizes 4 1/2 to 9, AA to B.

$1.00

Sale Opens 8 a. m. Wednesday

Geo. W. Robison & Co.

We Give Eagle Stamps

Hope Prescott Nashville

The Leading Department Store

1938 Was Distinctly Lacking in Distinguished Films

HOLLYWOOD.—Even Moeletown admits that 1938 was a year of undistinguished pictures. It was a time for marking time, a period of discouragement and confusion and budget slashing. War scares and the collapse of foreign markets were no more alarming than the apathy of an American public which grumbled that it was tired of seeing the same old stories in new locales and that it would rather stay home and play checkers.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences—if that organization is not destroyed by dissension within the industry—will have little difficulty in selecting the outstanding pictures when it gets around to making its awards. Because, from the critical considerations of stories, treatment, direction, casting, production and performance, there were not 10 distinguished motion pictures made in 1938.

Inspiration Famine
Nobody made, or even attempted, a "Night Must Fall," or a "Fury," or a "Days Way for Tomorrow," or even a "Good Earth." Nobody thought of a great idea for a musical. Comedy was considered the best vehicle for love, and casts were sprinkled too liberally with stars, many of whom probably could have been replaced by actors better fitted by appearance or age.

Union troubles, Communist and domestic economics were shunned subjects. Stories relating to touchy foreign situations were emasculated in fear of embargoes on American films. "Blockade" was so delicately juggled that nobody knew for sure who was on what side.

And Robert Taylor, on the set of "Three Comrades," complained to me one day: "They've taken all the guts out of it, and even the reason for it. Audiences won't even know what the shooting's all about."

Taken from the National Box Office Digest, which endeavors to report the draw of all major features released during the year, here is a list of the 10 best business-getters in the Class A bracket: "Alexander's Ragtime Band," doing 277 per cent of nominal business; "Snow White," 225 per cent; "Test Pilot," 187 per cent; "In Old Chicago," 181 per cent; "Boys Town," 174 per cent; "Adventures of Robin Hood," 173 per cent; "You Can't Take It With You," 162 per cent; "Marie Antoinette," 154 per cent; "Happy Landings," 153 per cent; "Too Hot to Handle," 149 per cent.

Flicker Phenomenon, Hatched History
"Alexander" is a flicker phenomenon with a sure-fire title, and the nostalgic appeal of many old Irving Berlin tunes, and the cast of the soldiers' show march, out of the theater to sail for France. But the story merely fills in the gaps. "Chicago" is two pictures in one with Tyrone Power miscast, as usual.

"Marie Antoinette" is historic hash with $2,000,000 worth of fancy dressing. The very pretension of such a flicker makes one resent its essential triviality. "Happy Landings" is routine Sorja Hefric with a better-than-average story. "Too Hot to Handle" is well-staged.

Best actress performance in 1938 was that of Bette Davis in "Jezebel," says Paul Harrison.

Columnist Harrison forecasts the Academy award of 1939 will go to Lionel Barrymore for his role in "You Can't Take It With You."

As further evidence of the unhappy lot of moviegoers during the last year, here are some other pictures which are well up in the box-office scale: "Girl of the Golden West," "Suez," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "Mannequin" (actually), and "Hollywood Hotel."

However, down near the bottom, where they belong, are "Kidnaped," surely the most atrocious screen treatment ever accorded a fiction classic; "Toy Wife," hamon-rye, even if it does star an Academy prize winner, Luise Rainer; and "Fools for Scandal," which I still believe was the worst picture ever made, considering the talent it contained.

Harrison's Ten Best
Here are this reporter's nominations for the 10 best pictures of 1938:

"You Can't Take It With You," because it is an adroit, ingratiating sermon which should be a priceless contribution toward a happier world.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," because—in spite of Russia's imaginings of hidden social significance—it is nothing more than beautiful and delightful fantasy, of which we have too little these days.

"The Citadel," because its casting, performance, direction and adaptation are, so far as I can see, flawless. If the subject were a shade more important and it would belong at the top of the list.

"Boys Town," because it is largely a true document of a materialized vision, and an important one.

"The Young in Heart," because it contains a slick story and such fine performances. "Four Daughters," because it shows what can be done with an unstarred cast and a budget of less than $500,000. "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," for the integrity of its adaptation. And for the terror of Ann Gillis.

"Angels With Dirty Faces," because of its playing and construction. "Test Pilot," because it is the best example of pure showmanship. "Love Finds Andy Hardy," because it has taught Hollywood what the public wants.

Here Are His Individual Choices
For a forecast of the Academy awards, this reporter will predict:

Best Picture: "You Can't Take It With You" (Columbia.)

Best Performance By An Actress: Bette Davis, in "Jezebel."

Best Performance By An Actor: Spencer Tracy, in "Test Pilot."

Best Direction: Frank Capra, "You Can't Take It With You."

Best Supporting Actress: Minnie Dupree, in "The Young in Heart."

Best Supporting Actor: Lionel Barrymore, in "You Can't Take It With You." (Unless "Kentucky" is considered a 1938 release, in which case Walter Brennan should be the winner.)

Best Original Screen Play: "Four Daughters" (Warner Brothers). Should be "Angels With Dirty Faces."

Best Adaptation: "You Can't Take It With You." Should be "The Citadel."

Special Award: Warner Brothers, for their patriotic shorts.

STAMP NEWS

To commemorate the visit to Canada next summer of the British sovereigns, the Dominion will issue a special set of postage stamps and mint a Canadian silver dollar. King George VI has already approved the designs for the stamps. Prime Minister Mackenzie King has announced.

First-day sales of the Theodore Roosevelt and Taft stamps of the new U. S. regular series totaled $20,120 and $31,288 respectively. Issuance of these two values completed the 1938 U. S. philatelic program.

Newest nation to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the U. S. Constitution is Panama. Panama shortly will issue two sets, five regular values and five airmail. Produced in multi-color in sheets of 25, the stamps feature a center with two ovals, that to the left showing the ruins of the Cathedral Tower of old Panama and that to the right showing the Statue of Liberty. At the extreme left is the flag of Panama and at the extreme right the United States flag, both in their natural red, white and blue. The airmail set in addition carries a plane at the top.

Seven denominations, ranging in value from 1 cent to $1, will be issued early in 1939 by Panama to mark the 25th anniversary of the building of the Panama Canal. Each value will bear a separate design. Very likely the history of transportation across the isthmus will be portrayed, including the moving of the ancient Inca gold, the trek of the "Forty-Niners" to California by way of Panama, and finally the opening of the canal itself, Aug. 15, 1914.

Many German stamps may be obtained for less than face today because Nazi refugees are putting them on foreign markets to save some of their money, which would be otherwise confiscated. (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

One Strong Fleet

(Continued from Page One)

that all this—not only the building of the ships, but the increase in building facilities—will take a considerable number of years, during which, at any session of Congress, retrenchment or some new naval reduction scheme may come along and stop the whole program, as happened in 1922.

But in the meanwhile, we shall—by commencing such a program—have adopted and fixed in the public mind the idea of maintaining separate fleets, one in each ocean. And we shall have gain built up the "vested interests" among the inhabitants of each seaboard, which were so difficult to overcome when the sound plan of keeping the fleet concentrated in one ocean was first made.

Therefore, beginning now to talk about a "two-ocean navy" may well result in a permanent division of whatever navy we have, without regard to whether it is or is not big enough safely to be so divided. Fortunately, we hold a short line of communications between our two oceans which is securely in our possession for our own use, and which we can deny to any power with which we may be at war. This route is the Panama Canal. Therefore if we keep our fleet at a level of battle strength su-prior to that of Japan or of Germany-Italy, we can very quickly confront either with superior forces, regardless of the ocean in which our fleet happens to be when the war starts.

But we can only do this if our fleet, at least as to its main fighting elements, is kept concentrated in time of peace. If we divide it, and an enemy superior to one fraction gets between that fraction and Panama, we shall have little chance of concentrating our forces without exposing one fraction or the other to a contest with a superior fleet. This is the danger we run when we allow the idea of a "two-ocean navy" to capture the public imagination.

The battleship—the heavy armored ship, capable of delivering and receiving the tremendous blows of modern naval power. It is the one type of fighting ship which can take punishment and still remain on the field and go on fighting. The airplane, of course, bomb battleships under favorable conditions, and a sufficient number of bomb hits may inflict serious and even fatal injury. But so will a sufficient number of hits from torpedoes or from heavy shells. The limitations of the airplane as to range, carrying power and continuity of effort repair its effectiveness very seriously, so that nothing of its vulnerability and dependence on good weather and high visibility.

The battleship is the foundation of the fleet, as the infantry is of the army. It is the one sea weapon, under all conditions of weather, is capable of fighting through to a decision.

The fleet needs, of course, other types of ships: cruisers for reconnaissance, screening and commerce protection—destroyers for anti-submarine, screening, torpedo attacks and convoy duties—aircraft carriers—submarines—auxiliaries of various types. Our present naval program calls for 18 battleships, 45 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 66 submarines, 8 aircraft carriers and 3000 naval aircraft.

Such a fleet will be heavily superior either to the Japanese fleet or the German-Italian, under present construction programs. Even a combined attack by all three would not be beyond its competence to deal with, having in mind our interior line of transit at Panama, and the tremendous difficulty of coordinating the combined efforts of three different navies in two oceans thousands of miles apart.

But Panama is the keystone of our defense, and must be made as secure as science and foresight can make it.

Even so, no military position is impregnable. Daring and determined men have proven the contrary too often for complacency as to that. It will, therefore, be the part of wisdom for this country to build, not another navy, but another canal—that at Nicaragua—for which surveys have long been completed.

TOMORROW: The needs of our army.

SKIN'S THE LIMIT BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SALLY BLAIR—heroine. She has everything that popularity could wish for, except...
DAN REYNOLDS—hero. He might have had Sally but while he was king on skins...
COREY PORTER was king of the social whirl. So... But go on with the story.

Yesterday: Sally accepts Corey's ring in a moment of impulse, thinking she will never leave Dan again.

CHAPTER XXI

THE first thing that Sally did, in the process of trying to forget the Sally that Dan had not wanted, was to destroy the letter that she had kept locked so long in her jewel case. She told herself that Dan was a coward, since he had run away. She told herself that the tables had turned, that she, the old Sally Blair again, did not believe in Dan Reynolds. She would forget that she ever had believed in him. She would forget she had ever known him.

She had no use for his letter now; she would never read it over again. She did not even read it when she took it out of its hiding place. She tore it into tiny fragments, deliberately, cruelly, with that dangerous brightness in her dark eyes. A brightness that was not satisfied even then. She carried the fragments to the fire burning in the grate in her lovely bedroom; she tossed the pieces into the flames. She watched them crumple around the edges, shrink up into a pitiful small heap of gray ashes.

Like my heart, Sally thought, watching them—and leaned down swiftly to gather them into the palm of her hand, to let a tear fall on them. The last tear, she resolved fiercely, that she ever would shed over Dan Reynolds. If only she could have turned her love to ashes as simply as this, tossing it back into the flames again!

SHE wore Corey's big diamond on the third finger of her left hand now. She was supposed to be engaged to him. Corey had made up her mind for her. Sally, dancing until dawn, partying, laughing, playing the part of the gay glamour girl once more did not have any mind to make up. Nor any heart. Only a dull emptiness, taking the place of the old ache, where her heart once had been.

"I hope you won't rush into this marriage," her father said. He was troubled about his daughter. He had heard that she was engaged to Corey, and he was sure that she was making a mistake.

eager. Her dark eyes were much too bright to suit him.

He had hoped that if Sally must make a choice of one of the numerous young men who always had clustered around her like bees buzzing over a flower that it would be someone like young Reynolds. But he must have been mistaken in thinking that Sally had been taken with the lad. She would not have forgotten him so soon, when he went away so unexpectedly. Sam Blair had been sorry about that. But he had been convinced that the lad had had good reason; that in time he would return to offer it. He was not as convinced now that Sally, although she wore Corey Porter's ring on her slender finger, was in love with him.

"I'm not in any hurry to lose my little girl," Mr. Blair said. Especially not in any hurry to lose her to young Porter, he might have added. But he had nothing in particular against the boy, except that he was a bit wild, had had too much of the good things of this world. If Sally was sure he was the right man for her, her father would have to be satisfied, too. He did not see as much of Sally as he had for awhile, so that he did not find it easy to talk these matters over with her.

"Oh, I'm not in any hurry," Sally returned, stopping to lay a light caress on her father's forehead. That was not exactly true; she was in a hurry now. Outside Corey's horn already was honking impatiently for her to join him. Sally wanted to be in a hurry. Then there was not time to think—or to remember. "I'm not rushing into anything, Daddy."

SHE wanted to rush, to run, to dance—to live on the edge of excitement and thrills. Surely that was the best way to forget what might have been, not to think of what was going to be. The only way she knew to try to fill that aching emptiness. Oh, she was doing a very good job, as she had promised herself she would, of being the old Sally Blair again.

But not quite good enough to satisfy her father's keen, loving eyes. "Tell me one thing," he said, before he relinquished her after that light caress. "Do you love Corey, my dear? Are you sure he is the one you want? I rather hoped it might be someone else at one time." He did not need to name Dan Reynolds. Sally would know whom her father meant.

"There is no one else," Sally said. And blushed because it was so true.

Corey jumped out of his roadster to open the door for her. His blue eyes surveyed her with admiration and approval. Approval that held the pride of possession. She was so pretty, his Sally, so sweet, so gay. Her dark eyes were so bright, her cheeks so flushed. "I have a surprise for you," he told her, as they whirled along the white road at the fast, reckless speed that carried them through all the hours they spent together. "I'm going to get a party together, all the old gang, and go up to Lake Placid for the skiing. Soon after Christmas. The snow should be just right by then. We should have a very gay time of it. What do you say, would you like that, my sweet?"

HE threw a brief side-glance at her, wanting to see how she would like his surprise. But her face was averted. He only could see the sweep of her long lashes. She did not answer for a moment, so that he thought she might not have heard him and said again, "You would like it, wouldn't you, Sally?"

Her answer came promptly this time. "Of course, I'd like it very much, Corey," Sally said. She was glad they were traveling at such a fast speed. She was glad that Corey could not look into her eyes. That he thought she had not heard him above the roar of the motor. For then he would not be able to hear her heart's painful hammering. He could not see the pain in her dark eyes' depths.

At first, which was why she had not answered right away, Sally had wanted to cry out. No, no! She had wanted to say I don't want to go anywhere where there is skiing. I don't want to climb to the top of any mountain. For all of that would remind her too vividly, too poignantly of Dan. Dan who had been the King of skins. Dan who belonged in that white world of the big outdoors.

But Sally said, "Of course, I'd like it very much, Corey." She did not cry out in protest. What if it did bring back this stifling nostalgia, start her heart hammering again?

It might remind her of Dan. Or it might prove that she had forgotten him. It might convince her that the things she told herself were true, that she no longer cared for Dan, that she no longer believed in him.

She had to be convinced of that some time. Or she could not go on pretending. She might as well take this way of facing it. Dan had left her world. She could go back to him. Perhaps then she could put him out of her heart forever, fill that emptiness.

(To Be Continued)

HEART INTEREST!

Two women, desperately in love.

One making wedding plans. Discovering suddenly that both want the same man!

Follow them in the dramatic new serial

NO TIME TO MARRY

By Elinore Cowan Stone

Beginning Soon in
Hope Star

THE SPORTS PAGE

Sugar Bowl Game Won by TCU, 15-7

O'Brien Again Is Big Show As He Passes Team to Victory

TULANE STADIUM, NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—David O'Brien, All-American, unworked his famous right arm Monday to pass the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian University into a 15 to 7 triumph over Carnegie Tech's Tartans in the annual Sugar Bowl classic.

With the exception of one brief spell in the wildest football game of the Sugar Bowl history, the Southwest Conference champions from Fort Worth monopolized the struggle as O'Brien, a 152-pound quarterback dynamo, directed the nation's No. 1 gridiron machine to a well-earned victory.

Able supporting the aerial attack that saw the air filled with 28 flings from the little marksman was a powerful display of ball carrying by Fullback Connie Sparks and Halfback Johnny Hall behind what was probably the biggest and best line the southwest has produced.

While O'Brien was uncanny in firing the pigskin right into the arms of his receivers, his support on the catching end by such luminaries as Don Leary, Earl Clark and Duward Horner stood out in the attack that saw the Frogs, trailing at the half 6-7 and on the short end of the score for the first time in 11 consecutive games, come back to win handily.

Leo R. (Dutch) Meyer, the Frog coach, was extremely happy and lost no time in praising the Carnegie Tech team, eastern champion who stopped the long string of victories by Pittsburgh last fall.

"It was a tough son-of-a-gun," said Meyer. "They've got a great ball team and we're happy to have won."

Texas Christian, in addition to its pair of touchdowns and O'Brien's field goal in the final period, drove into scoring territory on three other occasions only to be checked by some excellent line play of the Tartans at the 12, 21 and 19-yard lines. Carnegie Tech, receiving a fumble, was on the TCU 19 just before the half closed, but got no farther.

More than 50,000 spectators, comfortable under a bright winter sun that sent the temperature into the 70s, sat through a scoreless first period that saw O'Brien open up the passing show right at the start. It was not until midway of the second frame that the scoring fireworks got under way.

The Horned Frogs were the first to draw blood, driving 76 yards from their own 34, for the first touchdown with Sparks slashing through center to score. The marker came after O'Brien's tosses intermingled by yardage gained inside and outside tackle, had carried to the one yard stripe.

Carnegie Tech took the kickoff and Halfback Merlyn Condit ran it out to the 36, from which point the Tartans went on to get their lone touchdown. The score came on a spectacular pass play, with Peter Moroz, like O'Brien a featherweight ball player, standing at midfield and connecting with a lazily floating, desperate toss to George Mulha just 50 seconds before the second period ended.

The 150-pound Moroz's aerial point-getter was just as good as any the Tartans tossed all afternoon, but the Frogs' defense against Tartan passing was nifty.

Coming back after the intermission and on the short end of the score, the Horned Frogs lost no time in regaining the lead. They drove 80 yards in five plays to cross the goal—O'Brien featuring the march with the completion of two beautiful passes.

The University of Georgia has three sound movie machines and 28 sound films for classroom use.

Chipping Like the Old Block

Johnny Revolta, Jr., gets a lesson from his famous golfing father at the Miami Biltmore Country Club of Coral Gables, Fla., as he tries out miniature duplicates of his dad's clubs.

Cotton Bowl Game Won by St. Mary

The Galloping Gaels Have Too Much Power for Texas Tech

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Power buried razzle-dazzle in the drenched Cotton Bowl Monday. St. Mary's galloping Gaels burying Texas Tech, 20-13.

In the final 11 minutes, an incredible Tech aerial show almost closed the gap. Outrushed and smothered under a 20-6 deficit, the Texans bounced back with a shower of long, short, screen and lateral passes that netted two touchdowns and came uncomfortably close to the one needed. One of their many aerials boomeranged, however, and that was St. Mary's victory—a 23-yard touchdown sprint with an intercepted pass.

Until the last minutes, St. Mary's power with Ed Heffernan and Michael Klotovich in the featured roles, had made mincemeat of a game which but totally bewildered Tech defense. The Gaels splintered the Tech line with slants over the tackles and dropped a pass occasionally to build up a 14-0 half-time lead.

The power drives of St. Mary's gained an even 200-yards. The Techs, with a dramatic windup that featured a 65-yard sky gain, counted 133 yards on their overhead game. St. Mary's punched over 11 first downs to Tech's eight.

Patterson Is Star SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—A great passer and two remarkable passes combined Monday to give the West a 14-0 upset victory over the East in the annual football classic played for charity.

Some 60,000 fans jammed Kezar Stadium to capacity, sat under leaden skies and intermittent drizzles of rain throughout one of the most thrilling

The PAYOFF

Richard Bartell assures Philip K. Wrigley, Gabby Hartnett, and Chicago baseball addicts that a sound short-stop will report to the Cubs in the spring.

The 31-year old pepper pot traded by the Giants to the Bruins, together with Gus Mancuso and Hank Leibor for Billy Jurges, Ken O'Don, and Frank Demaree, reveals frankly that he was afflicted with arthritis in his throwing arm on a western road trip last season. . . . had to retire to nurse a swelling.

When he returned to New York, an X-ray disclosed a spur on the bone like the small spur on a fighting cock's leg.

Bartell vigorously denies the report attributed to Pie Traynor that his legs have gone back.

"I was out of the lineup for almost a week, but I have no reason to believe the arthritis will return," is the word from Bartell at his Alameda, Calif., home. "It hasn't bothered me since. The doctor told me there was no permanent condition present. He also advised me that the spur, common to most ball players, would disappear during the winter while my arm is inactive."

"He also made it clear that there was no connection between the arthritis and the spur."

Thru as As Well As Ever Until Finger Is Broken

Bartell points out that he was throwing as well as ever late in the campaign . . . until sidelined by a broken finger while the Philo Grounders were still battling the Cubs and Pirates for the National League pennant.

Bartell insists that his legs are stronger now than they have been in four years.

"Winter golf, fishing, hunting, and skiing have put them in swell shape," he explains. "Four years ago I seriously took up golf. I play two or three times a week with Johnny Vergez, the former Giant and Philly who now manages the Oakland Consters. I took a tip from Ty Cobb, who walked miles every winter day in heavy boots to keep his legs in condition."

Mrs. Bartell has taken up skiing in the Sierra foothills with her husband. Oakland, that would appear to be a vigorous sport for a fellow supposed to have bad legs and arthritis.

Bartell traces what for him was a rather poor season to having to work with five different second basemen and Mel Ott who the summer before moved to third base from right field.

A shortstop cannot do his best work when he has to adapt himself to a new second baseman every few weeks, and Bill Terry tried Lou Chiozza, Mickey Haslin, Blundy Ryan, Alex Kampouris, and Bill Cissell.

Playing Between Herman and Jack Pleases Bartell

"Ott turned in a good job at third, considering that he was a made-over cuttler, but I had to worry about him, too," says Bartell.

Dashing Dick's finest years were 1936 and '37, and he credits them to playing the entire season next to Burgess games in the 14 years history of the series.

A halfback from Texas, Billy Patterson of Baylor University and a home bred of the Golden States, Jim Coughlan of Santa Clara, led the Western collegians to the most one-sided triumph since 1936.

Coming in at left half in the second period, Patterson whipped the ball to Coughlan, substituting at right end, and the latter ran ten yards to score. The same combination came back in the last quarter to repeat the pitching-catching maneuver, this time Coughlan snagging the ball over the goal line.

Trojans Whip Duke Final Minute, 7-3

Huge Throng of 91,000 Watch Sub, Sophomore Team Up to Win

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Southern California's mighty Trojans, riding to the peak of the comeback trail with a 51-yard touchdown drive in the last minute of play, defeated Duke University's big Blue eleven, 7 to 3, before 91,000 spectators Monday.

Wrecking Duke's proud boast of never a loss, never a tie and never a point surrendered in nine games of the 1938 schedule, the warriors of Troy, celebrating their return to the Rose Bowl after an absence of six years, traveled through the air to victory about 45 seconds before the final gun.

The gigantic, overflow throng, gathered under bleak skies for this 24th consecutive Tournament of Roses grid spectacle, saw an unheralded substitute and sophomore team up to break the unmatched record of the Iron Dukes with four straight passes.

The substitute story book back was Doyle Nave, and the sophomore end was "Antelope Al" Krueger, the lad from Antelope Valley. Krueger took Nave's last long pass, good for 18 yards, as he waited in one corner of the end zone, and there went Duke's hope of victory in its inaugural appearance in the big bowl.

For three quarters it was a battle between the men of Troy, fighting for Southern California's fifth triumph in the bowl, and Eric (The Red) Tipton, Duke's one-man offensive threat. For three quarters neither team could get inside the other's 35-yard line, but the Dukes finally drove to Southern California's 15 back of a 24-yard pass from Tipton to George McAlone, and set the stage for the appearance of Tony Ruffa, the place-kicking star of the Blue Devils.

With the ball on the 23, Ruffa kicked it high and squarely through the uprights. The three points looked as big as a house.

SC suddenly caught fire, and the Dukes seemed caught in the conflagration. Bob Spangler, Duke safety man, fumbled a Trojan punt, Phil Gassar recovered it, and it was SC's turn on the Duke's 10. But the Dukes refused to yield and the Trojans tried a field goal from the 25. Gaspar's boot missed. Tipton kicked out to the Trojan 39, and Greenville, Lansdell, quarterback running star for SC, engineered a drive that took the ball into Duke territory. Lansdell made five, Bob Peoples added one, Lansdell made seven and first down on the Duke 48. He made five more off right end and

Whitehead, "instead of being given a new second baseman every week to break in."

"Mayday, Pie Traynor was sore because I said Pittsburgh was mishandled," recollects Bartell.

"I also once said Pie as a third baseman made it tough on his shortstop by cutting in front of balls that the shortstop normally should handle."

Bartell is pleased at the prospect of performing between Billy Herman and Stanley Hack, whom he calls the slickest combination in the elder wheel.

Rowdy Richard likes Chicago . . . is glad to be going to the north side. He was born in Chicago, has a grandmother, three uncles, and a lot of other friends in Cook county.

Chicago will like Rowdy Richard, too, if he is sound and anywhere near the shortstop he was before bumping into what he candidly confesses was a mediocre 1938.

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

Leads Pro Lions

Elmer C. (Gloomy Gus) Henderson is the new coach of the Detroit Lions of the National League of Professional Football Clubs. The former Southern California and Tulsa tutor is shown with the mascot of the Los Angeles Bulldogs, which he drilled with great success.

Krueger picked up an end-around play. Lansdell fired a short pass over the line to Peoples for five, to reach the Duke 35.

Howard Jones, the Trojan coach, suddenly sent in Doyle Nave to replace Lansdell. The headman was going by air for the touchdown, and Nave was to plot the attack. A too-many-times-out penalty put the ball on the 40 and Nave started to work.

Fading far back, keeping out of range of the Duke rushing ends, he passed for 14 yards to Krueger. Changing his direction, he whipped another for 10 to Krueger, and still another was completed to Antelope Al, but it lost two yards.

The clock was ticking off the seconds, and the huge crowd was screaming with excitement. Nave again called a pass, drifted far back and fired away. The ball cut diagonally across the field and came to rest in Krueger's outstretched arms.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and presto—he had his pheasant.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

Oklahoma Loses to Tennessee, 17 to 0

Vols, Led by Cafego and Wood, Show Power in Orange Bowl

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Tennessee's Volunteers crowned their flawless 1938 record with a bruising 17 to 0 nothing victory over Oklahoma Monday before an overflow Orange Bowl crowd of 32,191 persons.

Led by a whirling dervish named Geo. Cafego and a jackrabbit runner dubbed Babe Wood, Tennessee ripped through Oklahoma's vaunted defense for two touchdowns and Captain Bowden Wyatt kicked a field goal as the Sooners failed in the last minute to complete their only serious scoring threat.

It was a rough-and-tumble duel, interspersed with frequent penalties and fumbles. The outweighted Vols showed they could more than take it in that kind of warfare.

They pounced on a break to move 27 yards in the first quarter, Bob Fox scotching through the line from eight yards out, capitalized on a fumble to get the field goal in the second period, and then proved they could start from scratch. Wood personally conducted a 73-yard touchdown sortie, scoring from the 18-yard line on an end run behind magnificent blocking.

Only in the final minutes did Oklahoma get under way. Bowled over by crushing blocks, the Sooners finally put their passing attack in high gear and moved up next to the Tennessee goal. There the aerial attack failed.

One last period it appeared the game might end in open hostilities. Gilford Duggan, Oklahoma's all-Big Six tackle, was ejected for taking a poke at Ed Molinski, Tennessee guard. Later Molinski was banished for slugging.

Tennessee lived up to its reputation as an opportunist team. Oklahoma was pushed back by a 15-yard penalty and Hugh McCullough, the Sooner big gun, pointed out to Cnfigo who ran 15 yards to the Oklahoma 27.

North Beats South MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(AP)—The South ran into another Gettysburg Monday as Northern college all-stars won a hard fought, 7 to 0 victory over a smaller Dixie team in a contest billed as a gridiron renewal of Blue and Gray rivalry.

Held hard by Alabama's capital where the Confederacy was born almost 78 years ago, the game, again like Gettysburg, was full of "might have beens."

Approximately 8,000 saw the contest.

Utah Wins Game EL PASO, Texas.—(AP)—Utah's football juggernaut rolled over the University of New Mexico, 26 to 0, in Monday's Sun Bowl gridiron classic before a capacity crowd of 13,500.

Heralded in pre-game forecasts as no better than even-money choices, Ike Armstrong's white-shirted warriors took the unaccustomed heat in stride and kept New Mexico's Lobos on their heels for most of the game.

Utah Wins Game

EL PASO, Texas.—(AP)—Utah's football juggernaut rolled over the University of New Mexico, 26 to 0, in Monday's Sun Bowl gridiron classic before a capacity crowd of 13,500.

Heralded in pre-game forecasts as no better than even-money choices, Ike Armstrong's white-shirted warriors took the unaccustomed heat in stride and kept New Mexico's Lobos on their heels for most of the game.

Utah Wins Game

EL PASO, Texas.—(AP)—Utah's football juggernaut rolled over the University of New Mexico, 26 to 0, in Monday's Sun Bowl gridiron classic before a capacity crowd of 13,500.

Heralded in pre-game forecasts as no better than even-money choices, Ike Armstrong's white-shirted warriors took the unaccustomed heat in stride and kept New Mexico's Lobos on their heels for most of the game.

Utah Wins Game

EL PASO, Texas.—(AP)—Utah's football juggernaut rolled over the University of New Mexico, 26 to 0, in Monday's Sun Bowl gridiron classic before a capacity crowd of 13,500.

Heralded in pre-game forecasts as no better than even-money choices, Ike Armstrong's white-shirted warriors took the unaccustomed heat in stride and kept New Mexico's Lobos on their heels for most of the game.

Utah Wins Game

EL PASO, Texas.—(AP)—Utah's football juggernaut rolled over the University of New Mexico, 26 to 0, in Monday's Sun Bowl gridiron classic before a capacity crowd of 13,500.

Heralded in pre-game forecasts as no better than even-money choices, Ike Armstrong's white-shirted warriors took the unaccustomed heat in stride and kept New Mexico's Lobos on their heels for most of the game.

Utah Wins Game

EL PASO, Texas.—(AP)—Utah's football juggernaut rolled over the University of New Mexico, 26 to 0, in Monday's Sun Bowl gridiron classic before a capacity crowd of 13,500.

Heralded in pre-game forecasts as no better than even-money choices, Ike Armstrong's white-shirted warriors took the unaccustomed heat in stride and kept New Mexico's Lobos on their heels for most of the game.

Utah Wins Game

EL PASO, Texas.—(AP)—Utah's football juggernaut rolled over the University of New Mexico, 26 to 0, in Monday's Sun Bowl gridiron classic before a capacity crowd of 13,500.

Heralded in pre-game forecasts as no better than even-money choices, Ike Armstrong's white-shirted warriors took the unaccustomed heat in stride and kept New Mexico's Lobos on their heels for most of the game.

Utah Wins Game

NO BAG LIMIT

FRANK CROSETTI

DOES MORE THAN HANDLE DIFFICULT CHANCES, ENGINEER, DOUBLE LONG, AND HIT LONG BALLS FOR THE NEW YORK YANKEES. THE SAN FRANCISCO ITALIAN TOPPED BOTH MAJOR LEAGUES IN STOLEN BASES WITH 27....

JOHN CARROLL. TRAVELED AROUND THE WORLD WHEN 17. REAL NAME, JULIAN LAFAYE. BORN NEW ORLEANS, LA...

GOOD SWORDSMAN, EXPERT KNIFE THROWER, HAS STUDIED VOICE IN LIPS AND EUROPE...

By BILL PORTER and GEORGE SCARBO

A true soldier of fortune, John Carroll . . . worked as a wiper in engine room of tramp steamer . . . has a large collection of guns and knives . . . he's a baritone . . . most recent starring role is in "I Am a Criminal" . . . will be 28 next July 17 . . . has a menagerie of pets, most of them black . . . has won many marksmanship prizes . . . will have final divorce decree from Steffi Duna early in 1939.

But now, with the World Fair approaching, a group of business men have united to open a central information Bureau where folk can have queries answered by a corps of metropolitan experts. Literature about the whole town will be compiled and catalogued for visitors and every phase of the city will be covered by the information-in-stock. This will be a self-liquidating venture, not subsidized by the city fathers, but by tycoons in private enterprise.

And no man feels better about the project than the officer who takes the rap for all queries in Times Square.

Hold Everything!

"I can't go home 'cause my wife's in a bad temper, and the reason she's in a bad temper is 'cause I won't go home!"

STILL FLYING HIGH

A FORMER PIGEON FANCIER, HIRSCH JACOBS, LEADS TRAINERS FOR SIXTH STRAIGHT YEAR, TYING CONSECUTIVE RECORD OF H.G. BEDWELL.

JACOBS HAS SADDLED MORE WINNERS THAN ANY OTHER CONDITIONER.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

GROUND DISCHARGES OF LIGHTNING MAY KILL A TREE... YET THERE MAY BE NO EVIDENCE OF THE STROKE VISIBLE ON THE TREE.

WHO INVENTED THE FERRIS WHEEL AND WHERE DID IT MAKE ITS FIRST APPEARANCE?

ANSWER: George Ferris, American engineer and bridge builder, of Galesburg, Ill. He built the first of these revolving wheels for the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago, in 1893.

Hold Everything!

"I can't go home 'cause my wife's in a bad temper, and the reason she's in a bad temper is 'cause I won't go home!"

1938 Was Distinctly Lacking in Distinguished Films

HOLLYWOOD.—Even Movietown admits that 1938 was a year of undistinguished pictures. It was a time for making time, a period of discouragement and confusion and budget slashing. The scores and the collapse of foreign markets were no more alarming than the apathy of an American public which grumbled that it was tired of seeing the same old stories in new locales and that it would rather stay home and play checkers.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences—if that organization is not destroyed by dissension within the industry—will have little difficulty in selecting the outstanding pictures when it gets around to making its awards. Because, from the critical considerations of stories, treatment, direction, casting, production and performance, there were not 10 distinguished motion pictures made in 1938.

Best actress performance in 1938 was that of Bette Davis in "Jezebel," says Paul Harrison.

Columbian Harrison forecasts the Academy award for best supporting actor of 1938 will go to Lionel Barrymore for his role in "You Can't Take It With You."

Inspiration Famine
Nobody made, or even attempted, a "Night Must Fall," or a "Fury," or a "Mist Was for Tomorrow," or even a "Good Earth." Nobody thought of a great idea for a musical. Comedy was considered the best vehicle for love, and casts were sprinkled too liberally with stars, many of whom profitably could have been replaced by actors better fitted by appearance or age.

Union troubles, Communist and domestic economies were shunned subjects. Stories relating to touchy foreign situations were emasculated in fear of embargoes on American films. "Blockade" was so delicately juggled that nobody knew for sure who was on what side.

As further evidence of the unhappy lot of moviegoers during the last year, here are some other pictures which are well up in the box-office scale: "Girl of the Golden West," "Suez," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "Mann-Quinn" (actually); and "Hollywood Hotel."

However, down near the bottom, where they belong, are "Kidnaped," surely the most atrocious screen treatment ever accorded a fiction classic; "Toy Wife," hamon-rye, even if it does star an Academy prize winner, Luise Rainer; and "Pools for Scandal," which I still believe was the worst picture ever made, considering the talent it contained.

Harrison's Ten Best
Here are this reporter's nominations for the 10 best pictures of 1938: "You Can't Take It With You," because it is an adroit, ingratiating sermon which should be a priceless contribution toward a happier world. "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," because—in spite of Russia's imaginings of hidden social significance—it is nothing more than beautiful and delightful fantasy, of which we have too little these days.

And Robert Taylor, on the set of "Three Comrades," complained to me one day: "They've taken all the guts out of it, and even the reason for it. Audiences won't even know what the shooting's all about."

Taken from the National Box Office Digest, which endeavors to report the draw of all major features released during the year, here is a list of the 10 best business-getters in the Class A bracket: "Alexander's Ragtime Band," doing 227 per cent of nominal budget; "Snow White," 225 per cent; "Test Pilot," 187 per cent; "In Old Chicago," 181 per cent; "Boys Town," 174 per cent; "Adventures of Robin Hood," 173 per cent; "You Can't Take It With You," 162 per cent; Marie Antoinette, 148 per cent; "Happy Landings," 132 per cent; "Too Hot to Handle," 148 per cent.

"The Citadel," because its casting, performance, direction and adaptation are, so far as I can see, flawless. If the subject were a shade more important and it would belong at the top of the list.

"Boys Town," because it is largely a true document of a materialized vision, and an important one.

"The Young in Heart," because it contains a slick story and such fine

performances. "Four Daughters," because it shows what can be done with an unstarred cast and a budget of less than $500,000. "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," for the integrity of its adaptation. And "Angels With Dirty Faces," because of its playing and construction. "Test Pilot," because it is the best example of pure showmanship. "Love Finds Andy Hardy," because it has taught Hollywood what the public wants.

Here Are His Individual Choices
For a forecast of the Academy awards, this reporter will predict: Best Picture: "You Can't Take It With You." (Columbia.) Best Performance By An Actress: Bette Davis, in "Jezebel." Best Performance By An Actor: Spencer Tracy, in "Test Pilot." Best Direction: Frank Capra, "You Can't Take It With You." Best Supporting Actress: Minnie Dupree, in "The Young in Heart." Best Supporting Actor: Lionel Barrymore, in "You Can't Take It With You." (Unless "Kentucky" is considered a 1938 release, in which case Walter Brennan should be the winner.) Best Original Screen Play: "Four Daughters" (Warner Brothers). Should be "Angels With Dirty Faces." Best Adaptation: "You Can't Take It With You." Should be "The Citadel." Special Award: Warner Brothers, for their patriotic shorts.

STAMP NEWS

To commemorate the visit to Canada next summer of the British sovereigns, the Dominion will issue a special set of postage stamps and mint a Canadian silver dollar. King George VI has already approved the designs for the stamps. Prime Minister Mackenzie King has announced.

First-day sales of the Theodore Roosevelt and Taft stamps of the new U. S. regular series totaled $20,120 and $31,288 respectively. Issuance of these two values completed the 1938 U. S. philatelic program.

Newest nation to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the U. S. Constitution is Panama. Panama shortly will issue two sets, five regular values and five airmail. Produced in multi-color in sheets of 25, the stamps feature a center with two ovals, that to the left showing the ruins of the Cathedral Tower of old Panama and that to the right showing the Statue of Liberty. At the extreme left is the flag of Panama and at the extreme right the United States flag, both in their natural red, white and blue. The airmail set in addition carries a plane at the top.

Seven denominations, ranging in value from 1 cent to $1, will be issued early in 1939 by Panama to mark the 25th anniversary of the building of the Panama Canal. Each value will bear a separate design. Very likely the history of transportation across the isthmus will be portrayed, including the moving of the ancient Inca gold, the trek of the "Forty-Niners" to California by way of Panama, and finally the opening of the canal itself, Aug. 15, 1914.

Many German stamps may be obtained for less than face today because Nazi refugees are putting them on foreign markets to save some of their money, which would be otherwise confiscated. (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

One Strong Fleet

(Continued from Page One)

that all this—not only the building of the ships, but the increase in building facilities—will take a considerable number of years, during which, at any session of Congress, retrenchment or some new naval reduction scheme may come along and stop the whole program, as happened in 1922.

But in the meanwhile, we shall—by commencing such a program—have adopted and fixed in the public mind the idea of maintaining separate fleets, one in each ocean. And we shall have gain built up the "vested interests" among the inhabitants of each seaboard, which were so difficult to overcome when the sound plan of keeping the fleet concentrated in one ocean was first made.

Therefore, beginning now to talk about a "two-ocean navy" may well result in a permanent division of whatever navy we have, without regard to whether it is or is not big enough safely to be so divided.

Fortunately, we hold a short line of communications between our two oceans which is securely in our possession for our own use, and which we can deny to any power with which we may be at war. This route is the Panama Canal. Therefore if we keep our fleet at a level of battle strength superior to that of Japan or of Germany-Italy, we can very quickly confront either with superior forces, regardless of the ocean in which our fleet happens to be when the war starts.

But we can only do this if our fleet, at least as to its main fighting elements, is kept concentrated in time of peace. If we divide it, and an enemy superior to one fleet gets between that fleet and Panama, we shall have little chance of concentrating our forces without exposing one fleet or the other to a contest with a superior fleet. This is the danger we run when we allow the idea of a "two-ocean navy" to capture the public imagination.

The battleship—the heavy armored ship, capable of delivering and receiving the tremendous blows of modern naval armament—remains the backbone of naval power. It is the one type of fighting ship which can take punishment and still remain on the field and go on fighting. The airplane, of course, bomb battleships under favorable conditions, and a sufficient number of bomb hits may inflict serious and even fatal injury. But so will a sufficient number of hits from torpedoes or from heavy shells. The limitations of the airplane as to range, carrying power and continuity of effort impair its effectiveness very seriously, to say nothing of its vulnerability and a dependence on good weather and high visibility.

The battleship is the foundation of the fleet, as the infantry is of the army. It is the one sea weapon, under all conditions of weather, is capable of thing through to a decision.

The fleet needs, of course, other types of ships: cruisers for reconnaissance, screening and commerce protection—destroyers for anti-submarine, screening, torpedo attacks and convoy duties—auxiliary carriers—submarines—auxiliaries of various types. Our present naval program calls for 18 battleships, 45 cruisers, 150 destroyers, 55 submarines, 8 aircraft carriers and 3000 naval aircraft.

Such a fleet will be heavily superior either to the Japanese fleet or the German-Italian, under present construction programs. Even a combined attack by all three would not be beyond its competence to deal with, having in mind our interior line of transit at Panama, and the tremendous difficulty of coordinating the combined efforts of three different navies in two oceans thousands of miles apart.

But Panama is the keystone of our defense, and must be made as secure as science and foresight can make it.

Even so, no military position is impregnable. Daring and determined men have proven the contrary too often for complacency as to that. It will, therefore, be the part of wisdom for "his country to build, not another navy, but another canal—that at Nicaragua—for which surveys have long been completed.

TOMORROW: The needs of our army.

HEART INTEREST!

Two women, desperately in love. One making wedding plans. Discovering suddenly that both want the same man! Follow them in the dramatic new serial

NO TIME TO MARRY

By Elinore Cowan Stone

Beginning Soon in

Hope Star

SKIS THE LIMIT BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SALLY BLAIR—heroine. She has everything that popularity would win her, except...
DAN REYNOLDS—hero. He might have had Sally but while he was king on skis...
COREY PORTER—was king of the social whirl. So... But go on with the story.

CHAPTER XXI

THE first thing that Sally did, in the process of trying to forget the Sally that Dan had not wanted, was to destroy the letter that she had kept locked so long in her jewel case. She told herself that Dan was a coward, since he had run away. She told herself that the tables had turned, that she, the old Sally Blair again, did not believe in Dan Reynolds. She would forget that she ever had believed in him. She would forget she had ever known him.

She had no use for his letter now; she would never read it over again. She did not even read it when she took it out of its hiding place. She tore it into tiny fragments, deliberately, cruelly, with that dangerous brightness in her dark eyes. A brightness that was not satisfied even then. She carried the fragments to the fire burning in the grate in her lovely bedroom; she tossed the pieces into the flames. She watched them crumple around the edges, shrink up into a pitiful small heap of gray ashes.

Like my heart, Sally thought, watching them—and leaned down swiftly to gather them into the palm of her hand, to let a tear fall on them. The last tear, she resolved fiercely, that she ever would shed over Dan Reynolds. If only she could have turned her love to ashes as simply as this, tossing it back into the flames again!

SHE wore Corey's big diamond on the third finger of her left hand now. She was supposed to be engaged to him. Corey had made up her mind for her. Sally, dancing until dawn, partying, laughing, playing the part of the gay glamour girl once more did not have any mind to make up. Nor any heart. Only a dull emptiness, taking the place of the old ache, where her heart once had been.

But not quite good enough to satisfy her father's keen, loving eyes. "Tell me one thing," he said, before he relinquished her after that light caress. "Do you love Corey, my dear? Are you sure he is the one you want? I rather hoped it might be someone else at one time." He did not need to name Dan Reynolds. Sally would know whom her father meant.

"There is no one else," Sally said. And flinched because it was so true.

Corey jumped out of his room, star to open the door for her. His

"I hope you won't rush into this marriage," her father said. He was troubled about his daughter. He thought of all the years she had spent with him, and how she too

But not quite good enough to satisfy her father's keen, loving eyes. "Tell me one thing," he said, before he relinquished her after that light caress. "Do you love Corey, my dear? Are you sure he is the one you want? I rather hoped it might be someone else at one time." He did not need to name Dan Reynolds. Sally would know whom her father meant.

But not quite good enough to satisfy her father's keen, loving eyes. "Tell me one thing," he said, before he relinquished her after that light caress. "Do you love Corey, my dear? Are you sure he is the one you want? I rather hoped it might be someone else at one time." He did not need to name Dan Reynolds. Sally would know whom her father meant.

"I hope you won't rush into this marriage," her father said. He was troubled about his daughter. He thought of all the years she had spent with him, and how she too

But not quite good enough to satisfy her father's keen, loving eyes. "Tell me one thing," he said, before he relinquished her after that light caress. "Do you love Corey, my dear? Are you sure he is the one you want? I rather hoped it might be someone else at one time." He did not need to name Dan Reynolds. Sally would know whom her father meant.

But not quite good enough to satisfy her father's keen, loving eyes. "Tell me one thing," he said, before he relinquished her after that light caress. "Do you love Corey, my dear? Are you sure he is the one you want? I rather hoped it might be someone else at one time." He did not need to name Dan Reynolds. Sally would know whom her father meant.

Another German Slice of Czecho

This time it's with a speed highway 131 feet wide. Map above shows how Germans are rushing new project through middle of Czechoslovakia to connect Breslau and Vienna. Czechs retain ownership but restrictions make strip virtual German territory.

THE SPORTS PAGE

Sugar Bowl Game Won by TCU, 15-7

O'Brien Again Is Big Show As He Passes Team to Victory

TULANE STADIUM, NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—David O'Brien of All-American fame, uncorked his famous right arm Monday to pass the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian University into a 15 to 7 triumph over Carnegie Tech's Tartans in the annual Sugar Bowl classic.

With the exception of one brief spell in the wildest football game of the Sugar Bowl history, the Southwest Conference champions from Fort Worth monopolized the struggle as O'Brien, a 152-pound quarterback dynamo, directed the nation's No. 1 gridiron machine to a well-earned victory.

Ably supporting the aerial attack that saw the air filled with 28 flings from the little marksman was a powerful display of ball carrying by Fullback Connie Sparks and Halfback Johnny Hall behind what was probably the biggest and best line the southwest has produced.

While O'Brien was uncanny in firing the pilskin right into the arms of his receivers, his support on the catching end by such luminaries as Don Leoney, Earl Clark and Durward Forner stood out in the attack that saw the Frogs, trailing at the half 6-7 and on the short end of the score for the first time in 11 consecutive games, come back to win handily.

Leo R. (Dutch) Meyer, the Frog coach, was extremely happy and lost no time in praising the Carnegie Tech team, eastern champion who stopped the long string of victories by Pittsburgh last fall.

"It was a tough son-of-a-gun," said Meyer. "They've got a great ball team and we're happy to have won."

Texas Christian, in addition to its pair of touchdowns and O'Brien's field goal in the final period, drove into scoring territory on three other occasions only to be checked by some excellent line play of the Tartans at the 12, 24 and 19-yard lines. Carnegie Tech, recovering a fumble, was on the TCU 10 just before the half closed, but got no further.

More than 50,000 spectators, comfortable under a bright winter sun that sent the temperature into the 70s, sat through a scoreless first period that saw O'Brien open up the passing show right at the start. It was not until mid-way of the second frame that the scoring fireworks got under way.

The Horned Frogs were the first to draw blood, driving 76 yards from their own 24 for the first touchdown with Sparks slashing through center to score. The marker came after O'Brien's tosses intermingled by yardage gained inside and outside tackle, had carried to the one yard line.

Carnegie Tech took the kickoff and Halfback Merlyn Condit ran it out to the 36, from which point the Tartans went on to get their lone touchdown. The score came on a spectacular pass play, with Peter Moroz, like O'Brien a featherweight ball player, standing at midfield and connecting with a lazily floating, desperate toss to George Mula just 50 seconds before the second period ended.

The 150-pound Moroz's aerial point-gopher was just as good as any the Tartans tossed all afternoon, but the Frogs' defense against Tartan passing was airtight.

Coming back after the intermission and on the short end of the score, the Horned Frogs lost no time in regaining the lead. They drove 80 yards in five plays to cross the goal—O'Brien featuring the march with the completion of two beautiful passes.

The University of Georgia has three sound movie machines and 28 sound films for classroom use.

Chipping Like the Old Block

Johnny Revolta, Jr., gets a lesson from his famous golfing father at the Miami Biltmore Country Club of Coral Gables, Fla., as he tries out miniature duplicates of his dad's clubs.

Cotton Bowl Game Won by St. Mary

The Galloping Gaels Have Too Much Power for Texas Tech

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Power buried rattle-dazzle in the drenched Cotton Bowl Monday. St. Mary's galloping Gaels burying Texas Tech, 20-13.

In the final 11 minutes, an incredible Tech aerial show almost closed the gap. Outclassed and smothered under a 20-0 deficit, the Texans bounced back with a shower of long, short, screen and lateral passes that netted two touchdowns and came uncomfortably close to the one needed. One of their many aerials boomeranged, however, and that was St. Mary's victory—a 23-yard touchdown sprint with an intercepted pass.

Until the last minutes, St. Mary's power with Ed Hefferman and Michael Klotovich in the featured roles, had made mince-meat of a game which but totally bewildered Tech defense. The Gaels splintered the Tech line with slants over the tackles and dropped a pass occasionally to build up a 14-0 half-time lead.

The power drives of St. Mary's gained an even 200-yards. The Techs, with a dramatic windup that featured a 65-yard sky gain, counted 193 yards on their overhead game. St. Mary's punched over 11 first downs to Tech's eight.

Patterson Is Star SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—A great passer and two remarkable punners combined Monday to give the West a 14 to 0 upset victory over the East in the annual football classic played for charity.

Some 60,000 fans jammed Kezar Stadium to capacity, sat under leaden skies and intermittent drizzles of rain throughout one of the most thrilling

The PAYOFF

Richard Bartell assures Philip K. Wrigley, Gabby Hartnett, and Chicago baseball addicts that a sound short-stop will report to the Cubs in the spring.

The 31-year old pepper pot traded by the Giants to the Bruins, together with Gus Mancuso and Hank Leibler for Billy Jurges, "Ken O'Dea," and Frank Demore, reveals frankly that he was afflicted with arthritis in his throwing arm on a western road trip last season. . . . Had to retire to nurse a swelling.

When he returned to New York, an X-ray disclosed a spur on the bone like the small spur on a fighting cock's leg.

Bartell vigorously denies the report attributed to Pie Traynor that his legs have gone back. "I was out of the lineup for almost a week, but I have no reason to believe the arthritis will return," is the word from Bartell at his Alhambra, Calif., home. "It hasn't bothered me since. The doctor told me there was no permanent condition present. He also advised me that the spur, common to most ball players, would disappear during the winter while my arm is inactive."

"He also made it clear that there was no connection between the arthritis and the spur."

Throws As Well As Ever Until Finger Is Broken Bartell points out that he was throwing as well as ever late in the campaign . . . until sidelined by a broken finger while the Polo Grounders were still battling the Cubs and Pirates for the National League pennant.

Bartell insists that his legs are stronger now than they have been in four years.

"Winter golf, fishing, hunting, and skiing have put them in swell shape," he explains. "Four years ago I seriously took up golf. I play two or three times a week with Johnny Vezzer, the former Giant and Philby who now manages the Oakland Coastiers. I took a tip from Ty Cobb, who walked miles every winter day in heavy boots to keep his legs in condition."

Mrs. Bartell has taken up skiing in the Sierra foothills with her husband. Offhand, that would appear to be a vigorous sport for a fellow supposed to have bad legs and arthritis.

Bartell traces what for him was a rather poor season to having to work with five different second basemen and Mel Ott, who the summer before moved to third base from right field.

A shortstop cannot do his best work when he has to adapt himself to a new second baseman every few weeks, and Bill Terry tried Lou Chiozza, Mickey Haslin, Blondy Ryan, Alex Kampouris, and Bill Cissell.

Playing Between Herman and Hack Pleases Bartell

"Ott turned in a good job at third, considering that he was a made-over outfielder, but I had to worry about him, too," says Bartell.

Dashing Dick's finest years were 1936 and '37, and he credits them to playing the entire season next to Burgess games in the 14 years history of the series.

A halfback from Texas, Billy Patterson of Baylor University and a home bred of the Golden States, Jim Coughlan of Santa Clara, led the Western collegians to the most one-sided triumph since 1938.

Coming in at left half in the second period, Patterson whipped the ball to Coughlan, substituting at right end, and the latter ran ten yards to score.

The same combination came back in the last quarter to repeat the pitching-catching maneuver, this time Coughlan snagging the ball over the goal line.

Trojans Whip Duke Final Minute, 7-3

Huge Throng of 91,000 Watch Sub, Sophomore Team Up to Win

ROSE BOWL, PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—Southern California's mighty Trojans, riding to the peak of the comeback trail with a 61-yard touchdown drive in the last minute of play, defeated Duke University's big Blue eleven, 7 to 3, before 91,000 spectators Monday.

Wrecking Duke's proud boast of never a loss, never a tie and never a point surrendered in nine games of the 1938 schedule, the warriors of Troy, celebrating their return to the Rose Bowl after an absence of six years, traveled through the air to victory about 45 seconds before the final gun.

The gigantic, overflow throng, gathered under bleak skies for this 24th consecutive Tournament of Roses grid spectacle, saw an unrelenting substitute and sophomore team up to break the unmatched record of the Iron Dukes with four straight passes.

The substitute story book back was Doyle Nave, and the sophomore end was "Antelope Al" Krueger, the lad from Antelope Valley. Gruenger took Nave's last long pass, good for 18 yards, as he waited in one corner of the end zone, and there went Duke's hope of victory in its inaugural appearance in the big bowl.

For three quarters it was a battle between the men of Troy fighting for Southern California's fifth triumph in the bowl, and Eric (The Red) Tipton, Duke's one-man offensive threat.

For three quarters neither team could get inside the other's 35-yard line, but the Dukes finally drove to Southern California 15 back of a 23-yard pass from Tipton to George McAfee, and set the stage for the appearance of Tony Ruffa, the place-kicking star of the Blue Devils.

With the ball on the 23, Ruffa kicked it high and squarely through the uprights. The three points looked as big as a house.

SC suddenly caught fire, and the Dukes seemed caught in the conflagration. Bob Spangler, Duke safety man, fumbled a Trojan punt, Phil Gaspar recovered it and it was SC's ball on the Duke's 10. But the Dukes refused to yield and the Trojans tried a field goal from the 25. Gaspar's boot missed. Tipton kicked out to the Trojan 33, and Grenville Lansdell, quarterback running star for SC, engineered a drive that took the ball into Duke territory.

Lansdell made five, Bob Peoples added one, Lansdell made seven and first down on the Duke 48. He made five more off right end and Whitehead, "instead of being given a new second" baseman every week to break in.

"Maybe Pie Traynor was sore because I said Pittsburgh was mishandled," recoiled Bartell.

"I also once said Pie as a third baseman made it tough on his shortstop by cutting in front of balls that the shortstop normally should handle."

Bartell is pleased at the prospect of performing between Billy Herman and Stanley Hack, whom he calls the slickest combination in the elder wheel.

Rowdy Richard likes Chicago . . . is glad to be going to the north side. He was born in Chicago, has a grand-mother, three uncles, and a lot of other friends in Cook county.

Chicago will like Rowdy Richard, too, if he is sound and anywhere near the shortstop he was before bumping into what he candidly confesses was a mediocre 1938.

Leads Pro Lions

Elmer C. (Gloomy Gus) Henderson is the new coach of the Detroit Lions of the National League of Professional Football Clubs. The former Southern California and Tulsa tutor is shown with the mascot of the Los Angeles Bulldogs, which he drilled with great success.

Krueger picked up for on an end-around play. Lansdell fired a short pass over the line to Peoples for five, to reach the Duke 35.

Howard Jones, the Trojan coach suddenly sent in Doyle Nave to replace Lansdell. The headman was going by air for that touchdown, and Nave was to pilot the attack. A too-many-times-out penalty put the ball on the 40 and Nave started to work.

Fading far back, keeping out of range of the Duke rushing ends, he passed for 14 yards to Gruenger. Changing his direction, he whipped another for 10 to Krueger, and still another was completed to Antelope Al, but it lost two yards.

The clock was ticking off the seconds, and the huge crowd was roaring with excitement. Nave again called a pass, drifted far back and fired away. The ball cut diagonally across the field and came to rest in Krueger's outstretched arms.

Ostrich Tactics Are Fatal to Pheasant

TOLEDO, Ohio.—(AP)—Dr. V. C. Williams caught a pheasant by its tail. He and a friend, hunting, saw a bird land. Following its tracks, they saw tail feathers sticking out of a snow bank. The pheasant had buried its head.

All the doctor had to do was grab the feathers and—presto—he had his pheasant.

Oklahoma Loses to Tennessee, 17 to 0

Vols, Led by Cafego and Wood, Show Power in Orange Bowl

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Tennessee's Volunteers crowned their flawless 1938 record with a bruising 17 to nothing victory over Oklahoma Monday before an overflow Orange Bowl crowd of 32,191 persons.

Led by a whirlwind dervish named Geo. Cafego and a jackrabbit runner dubbed Babe Wood, Tennessee ripped through Oklahoma's vaunted defense for two touchdowns and Captain Bowdoin Wyatt kicked a field goal as the Sooners failed in the last minute to complete their only serious scoring threat.

It was a rough-and-tumble duel, interspersed with frequent penalties and fumbles. The outweighted Vols showed they could more than take it in that kind of warfare.

They pounced on a break to move 27 yards in the first quarter, Bob Foxx scooting through the line from eight yards out, capitalized on a fumble to get the field goal in the second period and then proved they could start from scratch. Wood personally conducted a 73-yard touchdown sortie, scoring from the 19-yard line on an end run behind magnificent blocking.

Only in the final minutes did Oklahoma get under way. Bowled over by crushing blocks, the Sooners finally put their passing attack in high gear and moved up next to the Tennessee goal. There the aerial attack failed.

One last period it appeared the game might end in open hostility. Gilford Duggan, Oklahoma's all-Big Six tackle, was ejected for taking a poke at Ed Molinski, Tennessee guard. Later Molinski was banished for slugging.

Tennessee lived up to its reputation as an opportunistic team.

Oklahoma was pushed back by a 15-yard penalty and Hugh McCullough, the Sooner big gun, punted out to Cafego who ran 15 yards to the Oklahoma 27.

North Beats South MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(AP)—The South ran into another Gettysburg Monday as Northern college all-stars won a hard fought, 7 to 0 victory over a smaller Dixie team in a contest billed as a gridiron renewal of Blue and Gray rivalry.

Held hard by Alabama's capital where the Confederacy was born almost 78 years ago, the game, again like Gettysburg, was full of "might have beens."

Approximately 8,000 saw the contest.

Utah Wins Game

EL PASO, Texas.—(AP)—Utah's football juggernaut rolled over the University of New Mexico, 26 to 0, in Monday's Sun Bowl gridiron classic before a capacity crowd of 13,500.

Heralded in pre-game forecasts at no better than even-money choices, Ike Armstrong's white-shirted warriors took the unaccustomed heat in stride and kept New Mexico's Lobos on their heels for most of the game.

In New York By George Ross

Too Many Amateur Cooks Spoil Professional Chef's Broth

NEW YORK — No one knew how many amateur cooks there were in these precincts until a local hostelry staged an amateur cooks' contest. And then there were more male candidates for the non-pro chefs' marathon than there were ovens or soupy (ETAOIN) around.

So they rotated the matches and the contest took two days instead of one. Out of that cook-off tournament, great the Society of Amateur Cooks whose membership includes the gag-inventor Rube Goldberg, the literary Ford Madox Ford, the theatrical Crosby Gaige, the artistic James Montgomery Flagg, the dramatic Achmed Abdullah and the string-pulling Tony Sarg. These boys got together often for sta cooking parties, informing their wives first that they are stepping around to the billiard parlor, in order to keep the peace at home.

At such a gathering of the Hot Oven League the other night, there almost was an incident involving the Britisher, Mr. Ford, and an erratic Italian chef. It seems the chef heard Mr. Ford call for "Canadian pepper," while he was in the throes of putting together a tasty dish and the chef had had a snootful of these amateur antics by that time.

"I quit," he cried. "There no such thing as Canadian pepper. Go home, let you meesus cook the soup!"

He was mollified when told that he had been misled by Ford's heavy English accent and that Cayenne pepper was the order. But nothing could diminish his disgust at the antics of rank amateurs musing in on his venerable calling.

Oh, yes, some of these gentlemen also knit!

Little Too Short A WPA vaudeville unit got itself into some difficulty around here when bade to perform for the sailors aboard the battleship Arkansas. The unit's stage manager, whose nautical experience is limited to the Staten Island Ferry, inquired of the deck captain where he was to hank the backdrop.

"From the bridge, of course," directed the seaman. "The manager rubbed his chin doubtfully as he gazed up at the nearby Williamsburgh span across the East River.

"Don't think it will reach, Cap."

NO BAG LIMIT

FRANK CROSETTI

DOES MORE THAN HANDLE DIFFICULT CHANCES, ENGINEER, DOUBLE PLAYS, AND HIT LONG BALLS FOR THE NEW YORK YANKEES... THE SAN FRANCISCO ITALIAN TOPPED BOTH MAJOR LEAGUES IN STOLEN BASES WITH 27....

he murmured.

Suicide Seers The mounting of a new television aerial atop the Empire State Building almost caused a panic in the streets some 103 flights below the tower. For, in order to erect the criss-cross aerial at the topmost point of the skyscraper, a workman had to crawl to the outer wall and stand against it as a support.

The instant he was seen in that position, fly-like from that height, pedestrians in the street were sure there was a man poised up there for a suicidal leap. The switchboard was deluged with warning calls from frantic spectators and traffic was tied up at the corner when a crowd congested the street, tensely awaiting the dramatic leap to death.

The tension was shattered when the workman, his perilous chore done, casually climbed back toward the terrace, scaled the ledge and went downstairs to wash up. Many a New Yorker went home that day with nervous indigestion.

Brass-button Guide Book

At long last there is relief in sight for the solitary, harassed cop in the Times Square booth. For a number of years, the encyclopedic policeman has been answering the most wild-eyed questions about Manhattan. Stationed there on a Broadway island, he has told New Yorkers and visiting firemen everything from the best way to reach Brooklyn to where a decoy for duck hunters could be readily bought. He was a human guide-book in uniform.

But now, with the World Fair approaching, a group of business men have united to open a central Information Bureau where folk can have queries answered by a corps of metropolis experts. Literature about the whole town will be compiled and catalogued for visitors and every phase of the city will be covered by the information-in-stock. This will be a self-liquidating venture, not subsidized by the city fathers, but by tycoons in private enterprises.

And no man feels better about the project than the officer who takes the rap for all queries in Times Square.

Movie Scrapbook JOHN CARROLL

TRAVELED AROUND THE WORLD WHEN 17. REAL NAME, JULIAN LAFAYE. BORN NEW ORLEANS, LA...

GOOD SWORDSMAN, EXPERT KNIFE THROWER, HAS STUDIED VOICE IN U.S. AND EUROPE...

By BILL PORTER and GEORGE SCARBO

A true soldier of fortune, John Carroll . . . worked as a wiper in engine room of tramp steamer . . . has a large collection of guns and knives . . . he's a baritone . . . most recent starring role is in "I Am a Criminal" . . . will be 28 next July 17 . . . has a menagerie of pets, most of them black . . . has won many marksmanship prizes . . . will have final divorce decree from Steffi Dunz early in 1939.

STILL FLYING HIGH

A FORMER PIGEON FANCIER, HIRSCH JACOBS, LEADS TRAINERS FOR SIXTH STRAIGHT YEAR... TRYING CONSECUTIVE RECORD OF H.G. BEDWELL...

JACOBS HAS SADDLED MORE WINNERS THAN ANY OTHER CONDITIONER.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

ANSWER: George Ferris, American engineer and bridge builder, of Galesburg, Ill. He built the first of these revolving wheels for the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago, in 1893.

Hold Everything!

"I can't go home 'cause my wife's in a bad temper, and the reason she's in a bad temper is 'cause I won't go home!"

At 80, Carrie Chapman Catt Can't Fret Over Depression

By MARIAN YOUNG
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.—On her 80th birthday, Carrie Chapman Catt is philosophical about most of the so-called ills of the world. Especially the depression which appears to have dragged on for more than nine years. "Only four times in my eighty years have I seen what we are pleased to call 'good times,'" says the former Iowa schoolteacher who helped organize militant suffrage societies in 26 countries and whose crusade for women's rights reached its climax in 1920 when the suffrage amendment was passed.

"And those four 'good times' sessions were short-lived, indeed," Mrs. Catt continued. "There have been depressions of one sort and another through all the remaining years. In fact, I have decided that depressive state of affairs is normal and that a boom is not."

The protests of youth organizations against a world which offers no jobs to those who are equipped, ready and willing for jobs, arguments between capital and labor, breadlines, bitter controversies among political factions over questions of unemployment relief—these and similar depressions subjects now claiming our attention are all old stuff to Carrie Chapman Catt.

"The famous suffragist sees nothing to get excited about in the recent news that the number of women in state legislatures has decreased from 149 to 130 in the past ten years. She's satisfied with the progression of the crusade, which she and such women as Susan B. Anthony and Julia Ward Howe started. She thinks women can and will take up with greater authority better educational, religious and economic programs."

Mrs. Catt does not believe that women's comparatively new economic freedom can possibly be the only or even the most important contributing factor to the higher divorce rates in this country.

"It is all very well to say that because a woman knows she can get a job and support herself, she's more prone to a divorce than she used to be. But certainly the subject goes much deeper than that. Possibly the fact that her economic position in the home is no longer so vital has a great deal to do with the present situation. One by one women's duties have decreased.

"Only four times in my eighty years have I seen... 'Good Times,'" says Carrie Chapman Catt.

"Any husband knows that he can buy a bread and clothing and other necessities instead of having to depend on his wife to make them. So if a husband isn't an economic necessity any more, then neither is a wife. If blame must be laid, then let's lay it on the natural progression of things mechanical instead of simply on the emancipation of women."

It was at the age of six that Mrs. Catt's interest in women's rights first evidenced itself. For a year she and the other little girls had been spending half their time running screamingly away from small snakes their boy classmates carried. One fine day, however, the women who were later to become one of the greatest suffragists of all time grabbed a snake and chased the boys.

Born in Wisconsin, she moved with her family to Iowa when she was seven. At 14 she was teaching school to earn money enough to go to college. At 16 she entered Iowa State College. At 22 she was elected superintendent of schools in Mason City, Iowa.

A year later, the young teacher met and married Lee Chapman, a newspaper editor. They moved to San Francisco, bought a daily paper, and together they ran it. On less than two years Mr. Chapman died.

It was during her newspaper career that the young widow met Lusy Stone, Susan B. Anthony and Julia Ward Howe. They interested her further in suffrage. And in 1890 when she married the late George William Catt, she had become a national leader of what turned out to be a winning fight for women's rights. Now at

The Library

Read the better books from the shelves of your City Library.

- "Murder Off Stage," by Monte Barret.
- "Two Gun Gerts," by John Day.
- "Singing Guns," by Max Brand.
- "Saturday's Child," by Kathleen Norris.
- "The Chance of a Lifetime," by Grace L. Hill.
- "Laddie," by Gene Stratton Porter.

FLAPPER FANNY

By Sylvia

"Let's talk English! I got all I can do without havin' to translate 'en garde' every time you mean 'watch out!'"

We, the Women

By RUTH MILLETT

Young Actress Has Own Security Code

With all the yelling young people do these days about security and their right to it, a 22-year-old who thinks you have to build your own security is something of a find. Especially so when she isn't talking about it, but doing it.

Alexandria Dean, who has just turned her back on a career in the movies to spend two years trying to get somewhere on the New York stage, has a pretty long-sighted view of security for a fluffily-haired blonde who looks like a college freshman.

She believes that her security isn't in holding on to a regular pay check, but in lacking something new.

"Because," she says, "that will be the best thing for me in the long run. I don't even look on tracing Hollywood, where I was born and where I've worked in the movies off and on since I was ten, for New York, where I'm unknown, as a gamble. It's just something I feel I have to do now while I am young, if I am to go as far as I want to go."

Miss Dean hasn't anything against Hollywood, and intends to go back. Even though she is giving up for a while the chance for which most of the girls in the country would trade their boy friends. But at 22 this girl who is Hollywood-born and Hollywood-bred thinks she ought to be building a solid foundation for her career—instead of cashing in on what she can do right now. And that solid foundation, she feels, must include at least two years in New York.

While she is looking for her first Broadway part, she is turning her ability to design clothes (she started designing so she could make the most of her own looks) into cash. All of the dresses and hats she sketches for a New York dressmaking establishment are the kind of clothes she likes to wear herself. Jacket dresses that can spend a morning jobhunting and march right through the day to dinner time; dinner dresses that have a handy little head-business to match; and simple evening gowns that look new each time a different scarf or clip is added.

When she isn't designing for bread and butter or trying to see directors, she is studying seriously. It's hard to make Alexandria believe that there

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

A Fresh Slant on Spanish War

There is a new picture of the Spanish civil war in "The Patrol Is Ended," by Oloffe de Wet (Doubleday, Doran, $2.75).

Mr. de Wet went to Spain to fly a fighting plane for the Loyalists government. If he had any special interest in the great issues underlying the war, he seems to have concealed it fairly well; in a sense he went as a soldier of fortune, fighting for a cause and concerning himself little, if at all, with what the war was all about.

But he had the eye of an artist, and the ability to write a queer, jagged prose which seems a trifle purple at first glance but which carries a tremendous impact once you get used to it. And so "The Patrol Is Ended" makes stirring vivid reading.

For what Mr. de Wet gives you is what all of these World War aviators tried to provide, in the space of war-time-flying books that appeared a decade ago—the feel of aerial warfare, the strange and terrible medley of emotions that prey upon the pilot of a fighting plane, the queer life that a man leads when his life hangs on a thread from day to day and the giving and risking of death in single combat are his regular routine.

Such a life wears a man out—and fascinates him at the same time. You can see this author despising war, hating his job, longing for peace and security... and yet clinging to what he is doing when he apparently has no motive beyond the prosaic one of earning a good salary.

Although, then, "The Patrol Is Ended" is quite a book. You may not understand the Spanish war much better after you have read it, but you will understand the aviator's part in it.

80, she keeps busy with letters that come to her from all over the world, holds honorary offices in a number of important women's organizations and has recently collected a library on women and their crusade for suffrage for the Library of Congress in Washington. Carrie Chapman Catt isn't ready to rest on her laurels—even at 80.

Jitterbugs Help Judge Deal Justice

Judge Joseph Cordes, right, looks on in a Milwaukee courtroom as jitterbugs Kay Darling and Joy Hamilton demonstrate how physically fit one must be to perform gyrations of the Big Apple. Reason for all this was that a man who claimed injuries in an auto accident won a $5 Big Apple prize a week later. Defendant claimed he couldn't have been hurt much. The judge took matter under advisement.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Stepmothers Can Count on Child's Sense of Justice in Problem of Discipline

When a new mother or father arrives to stay, it may seem very strange to the boy or girl at first.

Let us say that in this case Mrs. Jones, the new Mrs. Jones is the stepmother. And that Larry is about ten years old. How will Larry treat her? Probably he has been coached about kindness and manners and therefore he receives her politely.

But it is also probable that he was very close to his own mother, and as a result, he cannot bring himself immediately to call this new lady "mother." He may be long time taking the new parent to his heart, although he may treat her deferentially.

But, as all children will, he misbehaves at times. His father won't know, because he is away most of the time. Then his stepmother is confronted with a problem indeed. The child needs reprimanding. She cannot complain to her husband lest he thinks her too critical; not only that, but if she tells, then this will break the very bond of confidence she is trying so hard to establish with the child.

At such a time he is apt to use her position as a defense, and say something about her not being his boss.

Yet she knows that his own mother, had she lived, or hadn't been divorced (something to be considered these days), would have felt entirely justified in punishing the culprit. And feels also that it's her responsibility to train him as best she may.

In such a case there is one big item to be remembered. After all she is not the mother and her role must necessarily be just a bit different. The approach to a crisis cannot, for awhile at least, be too peremptory or abrupt.

The Right Approach
All children, even the most obstreperous, have a sense of justice deep in their hearts. It is through this that she may work the miracle. I believe that she might lay her cards right on the table and say, "Larry, I know I am not your mother. I want to be friends so very much, but you want to do your part very often. I came here, not to take your mother's place, but to do what she might want me to do if she were still here; say for example, if she were ill in bed and not able to attend to you or the house. I think she would want me to do what is best for you, and that is what should like better than anything else, if only you would let me."

"Larry, couldn't you think of your mother watching us both, and being sorry if either you or I made a big mistake? She wouldn't want you to be out all afternoon in this blizzard weather, and she would insist on your wearing your goggles. I am sure. She wouldn't be very happy knowing that you defied an order just because she is not able to give it herself. I am trying so hard, Larry, and if you would only try a little, too. I think we could manage beautifully. Come, now, let's forget it, and go and buy you a puppy somewhere."

Some plain speaking, might break the strain.

To Preserve Terry Home
SMALL HYTHE, England—(AP)—The National Trust which purchases and preserves historic buildings and land is planning to take over for preservation the Tudor cottage here, which, for the last years of her life, was the home of Dame Ellen Terry, the famous actress.

Today's Fashion Hint

Tailored But Saucy Casual Outfit Fine for College

8296

By CAROL DAY
Here's something smart, new and practical for the new casual outfit you want to wear back to college or the office. It's a youthful, saucy style. Tailored, but not too severe, this design, Pattern 8296, has a fitted jacket with pockets, shrug-shoulder sleeves and a little round collar. The skirt is slim and plain, with an action pleat in the front.

You can have fun with a dress like this, because you can make it look and you can wear both halves of it with other things.

The pattern includes a detailed sew different by changing accessories, and skirt. Choose wool crepe, flannel, jersey, velveteen or silk.

Pattern 8296 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Size 13 requires 2 1/2 yards of 39-inch material for long-sleeved blouse; 1 3/4 yards for short-sleeved blouse; 2 yards for the skirt.

The new Fall and Winter Pattern Book, 32 pages of attractive designs for every size and every occasion, is now ready. Photographs show dresses made from these patterns being worn; a feature you will enjoy. Lie the charming designs in this new book help you in your sewing. One pattern and the new Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents. Pattern or book alone—15 cents.

For a pattern of this attractive model send 15c in coin, your name, address, style number and size to Hope Star, Style's Pattern Bureau, 211 W. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill.

NERVE STRAIN APLENTY—BUT NO JITTERY NERVES

FOR CARL DOSSEY—CHAMPIONSHIP COWBOY AND STAR OF THE RODEO

HIS NERVES MUST BE UNDER TERRIFIC TENSION

THE MAN ON THE "BRONC" is Arizona's Carl Dossey, winner of two bareback championships in California and a high-point cowboy title at the big Utah show. Here is Carl at New York's Madison Square Garden in a thrilling stunt depending on split-second timing, perfect nerve control. Is it a strain? Carl says: "One hour around the ring puts more strain on the nerves than a whole day of punchin' cows. My nerves would be plenty tense, jittery if I didn't rest 'em every chance I get. My way is to let up—light up a Camel. Camels are mighty comforting."

I LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL!

I FIND CAMELS ARE SOOTHING TO THE NERVES

LOOK TO THE DOG FOR A VALUABLE HINT ON NERVE STRAIN

THE ENGLISH SPRINGER SPANIEL (above) is speedy, agile. He has a highly developed nervous system. In fact, it's remarkably similar to our own...complex, sensitive. But, unlike so many humans, this dog doesn't ABUSE his nerves. Nor does any dog. When a dog feels tired, he rests INSTINCTIVELY! We humans often let our will-power whip us on, deaf to the warning that nerves are getting frayed. Yet how much more pleasant, profitable life can be when nerves are rested now and then. Try it...break the tension...LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! You'll welcome Camel's mildness—rich, ripe flavor. Smokers find Camel's costlier tobaccos soothing to the nerves.

EDDIE CANTOR—America's great comic personality. Each Monday evening on the Columbia Network—7:30 pm E.S.T., 9:30 pm C.S.T., 8:30 pm M.S.T., 7:30 pm P.S.T.

BENNY GOODMAN—King of Swing, and the world's greatest swing band—each Tuesday evening—Columbia Network: 9:30 pm E.S.T., 8:30 pm C.S.T., 7:30 pm M.S.T., 6:30 pm P.S.T.

RECORD-HOLDING woman parachute jumper, Marie McMillan (right), knows the nerve strain of stepping into this air—4 miles up! She says: "I protect my nerves from tension by giving them frequent rests—I let up—light up a Camel."

STORE MANAGER (left) W. A. Knox's life is different from Dossey's, but there's plenty of nerve strain in it. "I'm on the jump all day," he says, "but it's my rule to break nerve tension by taking short recesses—letting up and lighting a Camel."

Smoke 6 packs of Camels and find out why they are the LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

COSTLIER TOBACCO